New Treaty

Panama Gets Tougher

PANAMA CITY (UPI)—President Roberto Chari told a mass demonstration of Panamanian students last night that Panama would not resume diplomatic relations with the United States until he receives assurances that negotiations will be held for a new treaty governing the Canal Zone.

Opinion

America Takes Beating

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The United States is "taking a shelling" on the world opinion front over the Panama situation, the U.S. Information Agency has conceded.

The agency said, in a report on a survey of initial press and official reaction to the violent incidents, that the United States is being strongly criticized in many parts of both Latin America and Western Europe.

SUPPORT FOR PANAMA
In Latin America, USIA said, there is "a general expression of support for Panama's position." It added:

"The United States has been generally criticized, the degree Continued on Page 3

Treat All, Demand Corsicans

BASTIA, Corsica (Reuters)—Some 5,000 Corsicans demonstrated here Wednesday night for the immediate treatment of all leukemia victims on this island with a French healer's serum.

The marchers were led through the streets by the father of a four-year-old French boy who arrived here for treatment last week.

Civil Defence Measures Urged

Russians Uneasy?

MOSCOW (UPI)—Marshal Vasily Chulov, in an unprecedented article published Wednesday, called for widespread instruction of the Soviet civilian population in defence measures against nuclear, chemical or bacteriological attack.

The commander of Soviet land forces, writing in the journal, Military Knowledge, urged creation of "special shelters" to protect citizens against radiation, instruction on protecting the exposed part of the body and respiration.

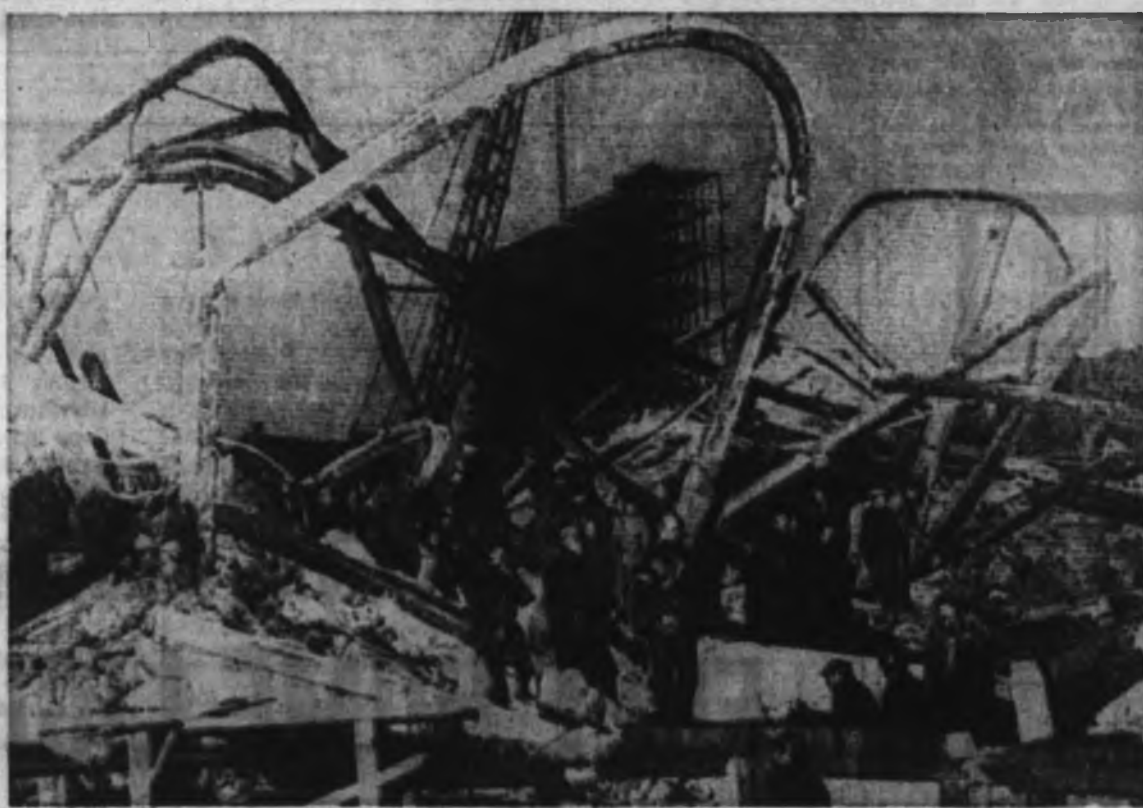

He also urged provisions to protect animals, food, and water and said rescue work should be organized to minister to the wounded following an all-out attack.

Chulov's article was the first by a prominent military man and an indication that the Soviet Union has not organized widespread protective measures.

This disclosure apparently contradicted accounts published abroad which claimed that Soviet measures to protect the population were more advanced than in the United States and elsewhere.

Premier Khrushchev has suggested that an all-out attack would wipe out "millions upon millions."

25 BURIED IN RUINS

PARIS (AP)—The 12-storey steel and concrete skeleton of an apartment house collapsed Wednesday killing at least 15 workmen.

Another 18 workmen were injured, and rescuers dug frantically toward the weak cries of men buried under the estimated 100,000 tons of debris. Two of the injured were freed with hacksaws and chisels. About 10 men still were missing.

FILE OF RUINS

Police and army engineers moved into the 20-by-50-yard pile of ruins with mobile cranes as firemen poked through the beams and slabs with listening devices.

Workmen were swinging the last beams of the roof into place when the structure swayed with a roar similar to that of a jet airplane, witnesses said.

LAST BEAM

The crew planned to celebrate the completion of the structural work Wednesday night after the last prefabricated concrete and steel beam was in place.

The building, financed by the government as moderate-rent public housing, was one of several in an 800-apartment urban renewal project.

Seven Alive In Mine

CASTRO-BAUXEL, West Germany (Reuters)—Rescuers digging toward seven miners trapped by a roof fall 200 feet underground in a coal mine here expect to reach them by Friday night, a mine spokesman said Wednesday night.

The men were being supplied with food through a natural fissure.

Shaky Case

Loggers Get Liquor

VANCOUVER (CP)—City police were advised Wednesday that they seized $1,300 of liquor on "extremely shaky" ground. So they took it back.

And a cheer went up at the hotel where the province's truck loggers are holding a convention.

UNLOADING
Detectives seized the hard liquor and beer Tuesday as it was being unloaded at the hotel, booked for 15 hospitality rooms operated by companies taking part in the convention.

Deputy Chief Gordon Ambrose said the seizure followed a complaint by a liquor vendor under a section of the Liquor Control Act.

NO AGENTS
This reads that no person shall canvass for, solicit, receive or take orders for purchase or sale of liquor, or act as agent for purchase or sale of liquor.

A spokesman for the police, dry squad said: "The section appears clear. But the city prosecutor's office advised us that there were cases in the past which would indicate our case—with the evidence we have—would be extremely shaky."

WOULDN'T WIN
"We were advised we wouldn't be successful in a prosecution."

Deputy Ambrose hinted that the vendor's allegations might have been borne out "if the liquor had reached a further stage on its distribution."

Williston To Sign For B.C.

Water Resources Minister Ray Williston will go to Washington Jan. 22 for the signing of the Columbia River treaty agreement on behalf of the province, Premier Bennett announced Wednesday.

Mr. Williston will participate in the ceremony with Prime Minister Pearson and President Johnson.

Mr. Bennett said the prime minister had invited him to take part, but he had to decline because the legislature is opening Jan. 23.

Face to Face Diplomacy: Paris, Washington, London, Tokyo, Cairo

Pearson, de Gaulle Discuss Cold War

PARIS (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson and President de Gaulle exchanged frank assessments of East-West relations Wednesday and dealt with matters directly affecting their two countries.

In a conference extended at de Gaulle's request beyond the scheduled one hour, the two leaders discussed the cold war thaw from the standpoint of future East-West relations.

It is understood they also explored ways to improve economic and cultural contacts between Canada and France, possibly aiming at consultative machinery similar to the periodic Canada-United States cabinet conference.

In discussion of cultural relations, student exchanges were high on the list.

Johnson, Segni Partners

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson and Italian President Antonio Segni ended two days of talks with a call Wednesday for a United Europe linked with the United States in an Atlantic partnership.

In a joint communique they said political and military talks on establishing an Atlantic alliance nuclear missile fleet are proceeding satisfactorily.

Segni also emphasized the need for an Atlantic partnership and a politically united Europe in an address to a joint session of Congress.

Western Moves Mapped

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Douglas-Home and visiting Chancellor Erhard set out Wednesday to cement British-West German partnership amid reports of new Western moves to halt the world arms race.

Douglas-Home and the West German leader, together for a two-day parley, were taking a long, cool look at prospects of disarmament as part of a broader survey of East-West relations.

While they were together British informants outlined a three-point initiative to be taken by Western powers soon after the 17-nation disarmament conference resumes work in Geneva Jan. 21. The West will be represented by Canada, the United States, Britain and Italy. The proposals:

BAN SPREAD
1. Experts should begin work at once on two major East-West agreements—to ban the spread of nuclear weapons to countries which do not now have them and to build a system of observation posts to guard against surprise attack. These observation posts would be set up inside Russia as well as the United States and in East and West Europe.

2. American, British and Soviet scientists should be assigned the job of trying to

Indonesia Threat Greets Kennedy

TOKYO (AP)—Indonesia took a defiant stance Wednesday as Robert F. Kennedy, U.S. attorney general, headed for Tokyo to meet with Indonesian President Sukarno on the Malaysian crisis.

Foreign Minister Subandrio of Indonesia warned that any economic action against his country might bring a complete change in its policy of non-alignment—presumably meaning a swing to the Communist bloc.

KEKS LOSS
Subandrio's statement referred to economic measures he accused the British of taking against Indonesia. But it also would apply to reports that Indonesia risks loss of U.S. aid unless it calls off its campaign to wreck the British-sponsored federation of Malaysia.

Referring to a decision by the British government in Hong Kong to halt licences for the export of certain strategic goods to Indonesia, Subandrio said:

RETURNS HOME
"If this measure proves to be the beginning of a general offensive, we will have to make an over-all review of the whole situation after President Sukarno returns home from his tour."

Subandrio then noted that the British action "can completely change the foundation of Indonesia's foreign policy, which to date has consistently

Arab Leaders United For Anti-Israel Force

CAIRO (AP)—Arab world rulers agreed Wednesday night on the essentials of a "positive solution" aimed at halting the Israeli water project and decided to set up a joint military command with permanent headquarters.

The leaders of 100,000,000 Arabs were in unanimous agreement on basic points of the plan, aimed at thwarting

the impending Israeli diversion of Jordan River waters but their foreign ministers meet today to put the resolution in final form, a spokesman said.

Kings, sheiks, presidents and strongmen of 13 countries agreed their anti-Israel posture required a military command with "administrative and financial possibilities as well as a permanent headquarters, and

Cold War Thaw Discussed

HAD BRIEF TALKS

Making his first visit to France as prime minister, Pearson arrived by air Wednesday at Le Bourget Airport and lost no time in getting down to business. He and the French prime minister, Georges Pompidou, who met him, were reported to have had preliminary talks on the way in from the airport.

Canadian spokesmen made it clear after the first round of talks they were pleased with progress so far.

STATE DINNER

The ancient Elysee Palace glittered with a throng of tailcoated, uniformed and be-medalled diplomatic and government officials in the evening at a state dinner and reception given by de Gaulle for Pearson.

Pearson referred to his afternoon talks in replying to a toast at the dinner. He said he and de Gaulle "talked about some of the diplomatic problems of this new world, how peaceful and constructive solutions for them may be sought, how free men and nations may co-operate over the coming years in this search."

LEADING PART

"In this co-operative search, we in Canada feel that France must play a leading part; a part worthy of the glory of her past and the achievements of her present and the promise of her future."

"This is only one reason why we wish to strengthen and develop our ties with France — political, economic and cultural. We believe that this can be done in our mutual benefit and in harmony with that wider grouping of nations (NATO) in which both countries participate and which are essential to maintain in this small crowded world."

In toasting friendship between Canada and France at the 94-plate dinner, de Gaulle said the ties between the countries, now sentimental and cultural, could develop also in the economic and other domains.

He said that in Canada France sees "a faithful and valiant ally, whose blood has flowed liberally on our soil during the two world wars; who today is a part of our camp."

Mother, Tots Die in Fire

Kirkland Lake, Ont. (UPI) — A mother and her two young children were killed when fire swept through their two-story frame home in Kirkland Lake, Ont.

The bodies of Mrs. Carl Nord and her children, April, four, and Guy, two, were found in the smouldering ashes. Two sons, aged 11 and 10, in the snow outside the blazing home, are reported in critical condition.

and whose situation, at the same time Atlantic, Arctic and Pacific, confers, in the ultimate defence of the free world, an essential importance."

RECEPTION

After the dinner, Pearson and de Gaulle attended a reception for about 1,000 French and foreign officials and personalities.

Pearson's words at the banquet marked the second public occasion of the day in which he stressed his government's desire to see France in a leading role on the international scene.

STRONG CLEAR

On arrival he had expressed the wish that France remain "a strong and clear voice" in the NATO alliance.

NATO itself was touched on only generally in the de Gaulle-Pearson talks later in the day. It is understood that specifically military subjects, such as the future of Canada's air squadrons stationed in France, were not on the agenda.

GOING WELL

There was support for the general impression among the Canadians that the talks were going well in the fact that de Gaulle asked Pearson to remain half an hour beyond the planned time for their first meeting. When it ended, de Gaulle personally conducted Pearson to the door and bade him good-bye as he drove back to his hotel.

Officials denied reports that the welcome given Pearson was any less enthusiastic than that given Premier Lesage of Quebec when Lesage visited here two years ago.

De Gaulle's absence from the airport was described as official protocol requiring the head of the French government—Pompidou—to meet the head of Canadian government.

De Gaulle, as head of state, would receive the visiting Canadian head of state—the Governor-General.

U.S. 'Taking a Shellacking' of criticism varying from severe to mild. Expressions of concern among government officials and spokesmen are common, but the general attitude among responsible sources is to wait and see.

In Western Europe, USIA reported, "Commentators saw U.S. responsibility for events looming large" and some called for a review of U.S. policy. Others suggested the crisis was inspired or exploited by Fidel Castro. Solutions for internationalization of the Panama Canal were suggested.

In Europe, the agency said, the situation was seen as the first major foreign affairs test of the Johnson administration. "To some West Europeans it was a carbon copy of the end-of-colonialism problems they themselves had faced, and this thought produced both sympathy for the United States in its time of trouble, and wary recollections of past U.S. reactions to Suez and other European overseas troubles."

Castro's Cuba, USIA said, invoked violent language about the "mad men in the Pentagon." At least one high Cuban official was said to have drawn a parallel between the Panama Canal and the United States naval base at Guantanamo Bay.

The Red Chinese press in Peking was dominated by the Panama story, including poetry, cartoons and atrocity caricatures, the report said.

There were public demonstrations and Mao Tse-tung used the occasion to blast Soviet softness on imperialism and U.S. "aggression."

Moscow played the story in straightforward form but used it to support Communist theories on colonialism.

Panama Holds Out for Pact

Panama would resume diplomatic relations with the United States and that the two countries will negotiate "all existing matters" at issue within 30 days after relations are re-established.

Chiari's statement last night made it clear that Panama does not intend to resume ties with Washington unless it receives guarantees that the United States will not be withdrawn from the Security Council until there is a final solution to the problems between the two countries.

The United States' position is that there will be no discussions of the treaty under duress from the Panamanian government.

The communique made no mention of the treaty.

Last night's demonstration was orderly, and the students dispersed after Chiari spoke from the balcony of the presidential palace. They carried a manifesto, demanding that any new treaty should eliminate the "in perpetuity" clause. The students assembled about 6:30 p.m. at the University of Panama and heard speeches from their leaders condemning the agreement.

Boric Acid Has Dangers People Should Realize It

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: What about boric acid as an eye lotion? I used one teaspoon to a pint of water. I had a red, painful eye, I guess from some infection. An eye lotion from the drug store didn't help, so I used boric acid and now the eye is all right. A friend told me boric acid was an old remedy but now should not be used. Is this so?—E.C.C. (71 years old).

I don't like to say that moderate use of boric acid is wrong, but my conscience won't let me say that it is perfectly all right, either.

We once considered it a "safe" antiseptic. Then we learned that it can be absorbed through the skin. For a specific example, a good many babies were made mysteriously ill until it was found that they (or their diapers) were being dusted with boric acid powder.

It has reached a point at which some hospitals don't even keep any boric acid in the dispensaries. Other medicines can do the job as well without the risk.

However, in your case it seems to have accomplished the purpose without any harm. It was in dilute form, and I presume that you used only a little of it, and only a few times.

VERY LITTLE

I don't want to condemn boric acid totally, but people should be aware that it can be dangerous. I do not think it safe to use on babies, although some borated baby powders have been defended on grounds that they contain very little boric acid.

It does not seem wise to me to use it as a daily eyewash. If your eyes are healthy, they don't need rinsing. If they need perpetual rinsing, then it is time to have them treated by your doctor anyway.

Dear Dr. Molner: When I was young I wore shoes that didn't fit. The nail on my left big toe became ingrown. It took me years to get it under control. For 30 years I've been able to buy shoes that fit and are not too tight. Some have been open-toed. Recently my other big toe has developed an ingrown nail, so tight I can't get under the edge to treat it. What causes this, and what can I do?—M.T.

The contour of the nail was probably changed years ago, and only now has reached the painful stage.

Yours is a not-unusual history of ingrown nails. They can and do develop after the original shoe pressure has been corrected. One can't be too specific without seeing the foot in question, but my suggestion is to consult a podiatrist. Frequently in severe cases it is best to have part of the nail removed. This relieves pressure on the nail bed and then guides the nail into proper contour.

NOTE TO MRS. A.S.: Ordinary smallpox vaccinations, for some reason, have been found to prevent Herpes simplex — cold sores — in many cases and hasten the healing. It is worth trying when one is continually bothered with them.

Working parties also should be set up to tackle some of the crucial elements of an all-embracing disarmament program. These would include force levels, military budgets, systems of verification and the key problem of nuclear disarmament.

EAST-WEST FACT

To coincide with the start of the British-West German talks, Communist East German leader, Walter Ulbricht, announced that on Jan. 6 he has called on Erhard in a letter to join him in a pact that would bar all nuclear weapons from German soil forever. But Erhard's government, which declines to recognize the Communist East German regime, did not deign even to accept Ulbricht's note. It was returned to him unopened.

Erhard's visit here, however, is believed to be aimed chiefly at warming up British-West German relations, somewhat cool under the leadership of Erhard's predecessor, Konrad Adenauer.

'No Hangings' In Zanzibar

ZANZIBAR (Reuters)—A cabinet minister of the revolutionary regime which toppled the Arab-dominated Zanzibar government has denied reports that ousted officials will be executed.

"There will be no hangings," the high-ranking official said Wednesday. He refused to allow use of his name.

The minister made his announcement after a meeting of the cabinet of the four-day-old pro-African regime on the Indian Ocean island.

He also said it was undecided whether Zanzibar would remain in the Commonwealth.

Zanzibar radio had broadcast a report that former finance minister Juma Aley and his assistant, Rashid Hamadi, were to be hanged.

The radio also claimed that Dek Salim, a supporter of the old government, was to be publicly burned. There was no confirmation.

Two other men, Kalle Salim and Omar Hamadi, also were reported to face execution by hanging although no date was given.

The cabinet minister said there would be a policy statement "later" about Zanzibar's future in relation to the Commonwealth.

(Communist East Germany announced recognition of the new Zanzibar regime Wednesday night.)

'Disappointment'

Vancouver Failure

VANCOUVER (CP)—Alvin Hamilton, former minister of agriculture, said Wednesday that Vancouver is a failure as a port, and a tremendous disappointment to the interior of Canada.

He said the city lacks leadership, and he's going to spend several days here "trying to stir things up."

Mr. Hamilton charged last week that Vancouver had failed to provide adequate facilities to handle wheat shipments. He spoke of a hodge-podge of inefficiency.

He suggested an overall land-use plan for the Greater Vancouver area, including drainage of delta lands to the south and direction of further real-estate expansion "up on those mountains" to the north.

Rathie Joins In Plea

VANCOUVER (CP)—Mayor William Rathie of Vancouver has joined Victoria Mayor R. B. Wilson in urging the federal government to award contracts for modernizing three Pacific area navy destroyers to West Coast shipyards.

Both mayors said there is an employment crisis in the B.C. shipbuilding industry.

Shrum:

Canada's Best Treaty

TORONTO (CP)—The agreement for development of the Columbia River is the most valuable agreement ever made by Canada with any country, Gordon Shrum, chairman of the British Columbia Hydro and Power Authority, said Wednesday.

Speaking to the Electric Club of Toronto, Mr. Shrum said the agreement with the United States was not a sellout.

SIGNED SOON

Agreement was reached on the hydro power and flood control project Monday and will probably be signed by Prime Minister Pearson and President Johnson in Washington Jan. 22.

Dr. Shrum said he could not reveal the terms of the agreement but he referred to $420,000,000 that will be paid for downstream power rights by the U.S.

"We get cash on the barrel-head for power 35 years in advance," he said. "We get it now in good U.S. dollars at a time when U.S. dollars are scarce."

Canada and the OAS

ONCE AGAIN Canada is being subjected to outside pressures to join the Organization of American States, according to a statement made Tuesday by Commons Speaker Alan Macnaughton.

In Washington to attend a two-day Canadian-U.S. Interparliamentary conference, Mr. Macnaughton revealed that American legislators strongly urged Canada to become a member of the OAS, arguing that she might have played a useful role in resolving the Panama crisis had she been part of the organization.

American delegates, Mr. Macnaughton said, felt that Canada as a member of the OAS might have been asked to play a part as mediator or to form part of the investigation team "because of her free and independent position."

Such a view of the status Canada might enjoy should she join the OAS is highly flattering though not necessarily realistic. It is, for instance, no secret that many of the Latin American members of the organization are equally anxious for Canada to join the group in the hope that she would side with them against the United States.

It is not unreasonable to suppose that the United States would harbor the opposite hope that Canada would lend its full support to Washington policies.

Thus if the OAS were split into rival camps, as it apparently is, how long would Canada be able to retain the image of "her free and independent position"?

Even if Canada were to join the OAS determined to follow a truly independent course the odds are that one side would soon be accusing her of being an American stooge while the other might soon be reading signs of anti-Americanism into her attitude.

Had Canada been in the OAS at this time and had she been delegated as mediator in the Panama dispute, as suggested by some American legislators, she would now be in an extremely awkward position. Either she would be forced to decide in favor of the American policy of retaining U.S. control of the Panama Canal Zone and risk offending the Latin American states, or she would have to support the Panamanian Republic's claim over the zone and thus rouse the ire of the United States.

Canada, therefore, should be grateful that she is not today performing in such an unpleasant and trouble-fraught role. She should also be thankful that she is not a member of the Organization of American States.

An Illusion

IF Health Minister Martin thinks air pollution can be adequately regulated by municipal bylaws as he has indicated in a letter to the metropolitan health board, he has only to look about him to have this illusion dispelled.

Quite rightly, the board has pointed to the contradictory nearby example of a mill in unorganized territory causing a local smoke problem that is entirely beyond the control of the municipal authorities.

The minister furthermore might observe that at present nothing can be done for its own protection by a municipality downwind from another which, to attract or hold industry, is lax in anti-pollution regulation or enforcement.

Mr. Martin's attention also should perhaps be drawn to the fact that if there were a provincial code protecting people and property throughout the settled areas of B.C. those municipalities concerned with the problem within their own borders could move with more assurance to alleviate it. The threat they now face is that if strict pollution control is imposed, mills and other industrial offenders will be forced to move elsewhere and take with them their benefits of taxes and employment.

This serious consideration for councils will continue to be an impediment as long as absence of regulation in unorganized areas and in some municipalities is an invitation to industry to relocate.

Saving the Charm

THE face of Victoria is certainly being lifted these days. Old buildings are being pulled down, new ones erected, traffic being re-routed and streets altered. The tempo of change proceeds at a rapid pace.

The "save-the-charm" campaign to preserve historic links with the past has therefore all the more virtue to it, if such links are not to disappear. So many already have passed into the limbo of forgotten things there is ample reason for concern during the current transformation of the civic scene.

The mayor has drawn attention to Montreal, where a commission is said to have power to designate certain areas and buildings as of historic value, and which thus cannot be altered without consent. Some authority of this nature seems appropriate for the Victoria district if its links with the past are not to come under the axe or so altered as to vitiate their appeal.

The idea is worth investigating and it will be backed by all those interested not only in history but in the aesthetic charm of the city. Two centuries from now, it is worth remembering, Victoria could have relics which are of equal interest to future generations as many Old World places and buildings now have for residents and visitors alike.

In essence however the preservation of historic sites and structures comes down to the question of funds. Historic places do not of themselves remain valid; they have to be secured and maintained.

Owners of sites and buildings designated for protection as public monuments could not be expected to waive compensation for their acquisition or be restrained from their alteration or demolition without due recompense. A commission empowered to prevent change would need money to sustain its operations.

This is a subject that warrants exploration however before as Mayor Wilson says, "it is too late." The need in fact grows the more urgent as the facelift of this area goes on. There is charm in historic appeal, as every visitor to older cities of this vintage well knows. Preservation of ancient buildings and relics lifts a city from the mundane and gives it distinctive character.

Even without arbitrary authority a commission officially appointed for such purpose could by way of co-operation and persuasion enable much to be done in protection of the civic heritage; but funds would still remain as a criterion of its success.

This city however should be able to afford expenditure of this kind; and it cannot hope to preserve the past without cost.

Thinking Aloud

"... of shoes, and ships, and scaling wox ..."

By TOM TAYLOR

YOU know of course about the man whose bark was worse than his bite.

He is anybody who is grumpy outside but gentle within. I don't know that nations can be appraised in quite the same fashion, for they have a habit of behaving, per se, unlike the people who comprise them.

This is the peculiar thing about a country as a national entity. As such it assumes a guise different from its inhabitants.

Let us take war and peace, for example.

If it were possible to take an impartial ballot on either, which will never be likely, the chances are all in favor of an overwhelming vote in all countries for an end to war and for perpetual peace.

Paradoxical too this is, for peoples don't live at peace within their own borders but instead are always quibbling and quarrelling. In our own case on local, provincial and national lines.

The difference is that these imbroghos don't involve being wiped out. This is the criterion between peace and war on the international level.

As entities nations feel they have to be ready to protect themselves just because they don't or can't trust one another.

And if you follow the headlines every day, and read of the constant threats being made you'd be apt to conclude that international peace, the elusive element that's avoided the world as long as there have been nations, won't ever come. Maybe not but maybe yes. If we live long enough we shall see.

Meantime, there is a saving grace, bound up in the grumpy chap we mentioned at the beginning.

Even with nations the bark is often worse than the bite. I wouldn't go so far as to say it necessarily hides a kind heart but enough is perhaps enough where grace is concerned.

I was moved to these not very profound thoughts by the Arab Republic's latest threat against Israel. The Arabs will destroy Israel if the latter diverts the waters of the Jordan for its own irrigation uses.

I have sympathy for some of the Arabs but I fancy the modern Israelis are as bonny fighters as their Biblical progenitors; they have already demonstrated this to the dismay of certain Arabian components.

So the bark looms as worse than the bite. It's been doing this for quite some time, also, ever since the Suez episode, which of itself indicated that barking is preferable to biting. The other fellow, the other nation, may bite back.

It has been this way with others than Arabians and Israelis. There has been a great deal of international barking, enough to fill the headlines every day for the past decade or so.

Indonesia for one, was going to swallow up everything within its sights, but not so yet. All kinds of seemingly belligerent nations have been expansive in their warnings.

On the major realm of all, that of the giant nuclear powers, something of the same erupts every few months, to wit: The U.S.S.R. can make mincemeat of America and the U.S. can do ditto to the Soviet Union.

If barks were bites we'd all be underground by now. Happily they're not, which is the point of this little treatise. Simply that while nations are barking they're not biting.

Perhaps that's as much as we can hope for, but it's a great deal.

I will say that Canada hasn't been barking, perhaps because its bark wouldn't sound very loud since as an entity we aren't a very big animal in the military sense, and a note from Ottawa suggests that soon we shall have even less to bark about.

The prediction is that the RCAF will cease to have a combat role in about five years time, even for home defence. I trust any nation which can bite as well as bark will pay due attention to this and govern itself accordingly.

It's bad enough to bark, I suppose, but rather more risky not to be able to bark at all. But in any event, you see, while nations talk they don't act and while they bark they don't bite.

So let them keep on barking if they must, but there draw the line.

Washington Calling

U.S. Concern About Sukarno

By MARQUE CHILDS

THE new year was scarcely a week old before President Johnson got his full initiation into the perils of the presidency in a time of troubles.

It came even before the tragic outbreak of rioting in Panama. The occasion was the first full-dress meeting of the U.S. National Security Council over which the new president had presided. The subject was the thorniest menace to peace in Southeast Asia—Indonesia. The mercurial Sukarno and his undeclared war against the new federation of Malaysia.

Three present, with two or three exceptions veterans of many such solemn confrontations, felt the president came out with high marks. He was quiet, restrained, soberly listening until his own judgment was required.

Underlining the deep feeling of those around the long table was the presence of Attorney-General Robert F. Kennedy. It was ratification of Kennedy's decision reached after long and painful travail to stay with the Johnson administration. While he is not officially a member of the Security Council, President Kennedy had asked him to sit in the sessions of this top-secret policy-forming body.

What is more, Kennedy had taken an active part in Indonesian policy, visiting Jakarta and engaging in some straight talk with the volatile Sukarno. That was when Sukarno was threatening to attack the Dutch on West Guinea with the MDGs and other advanced weapons he had got from the Russians in a long-term credit deal for about one billion dollars of military hardware. The West New Guinea reaction was the same kind of knee-jerk nationalism Sukarno is exhibiting over Malaysia.

As the meeting opened the president in calling on Kennedy for his views addressed him as "General," the way in which the attorney-general is often formally spoken to. This half-respectful, half-humorous, affectionate mitigation to one he has known well over the years impressed the council members.

As with so many situations past and present no simple solution in ready blacks and whites was in sight. The NSC heard a terse review of how relations between the United States and Indonesia stand at the present moment.

Three programs of on-going American aid are continuing. They are all comparatively small. A technical assistance program administered by AID is running less than $200,000 a year. A military program—mostly training—adds up to $15,000,000 to $20,000,000 annually.

The biggest of the three is the surplus food program that has run to $50,000,000 to $70,000,000 a year. It has meant chiefly 100,000 tons of surplus rice a year. But since Indonesia imports a million tons—largely from Burma and Thailand paid for in cash—cutting off one-tenth could mean little more than that city dwellers would have less rice in their diet.

But the important result was that the machinery of the Security Council had been effectively used under a new chief. As the meeting broke up the sense of on-going policy was strong.

Easy-Going Justice

Call Me Wilbur

By CASSANDRA from London

NO country in the world guards the dignity of its judiciary more jealously than Great Britain.

Her High Courts of Justice are temples of ceremonial splendor and tradition. And one of Her Majesty's judges in full sail on the seas of Chancery or Queen's Bench, or Probate Divorce and Admiralty, is a fearsome thing.

I am always surprised that contempt of court, which in theory can be avenged by life-long punishment if the purge is not forthcoming, is not punishable by hanging.

Most of Her Majesty's judges take themselves very seriously indeed, although there are isolated exceptions when a shaft of wit may penetrate the solemn gloom.

They do these things differently elsewhere.

Very recently when I was in eastern Texas I was invited to visit the local courthouse. A civil case concerning a dispute over a will was being heard.

The layout of the court was very similar to our own with the flag of the United States Arms behind the presiding judge on a raised dais. The opposing counsel were in front and below him, and the jury was packed on the same hard, wooden, shiny benches that we use in our Royal Courts of Justice.

There the similarity ended. The judge was not wearing

Most disquieting report to the council was that at Sukarno's orders incursions across Malaysia's borders are continuing. This goes on while at the same time he is campaigning in person in Manila and elsewhere by more indirect means in Asia to get his own way with the new Asian state—a Malaysia "free of British influence" coupled with a demand for a second United Nations survey of the Borneo provinces that would presumably produce a pro-Sukarno pool.

The decision taken by the NSC is, of course, a closely guarded secret. Since the president under the new AID act is responsible for finding that help to Indonesia is in the national interest, another high-level mission seems in order, headed again perhaps by Robert Kennedy.

What effect this can have is highly debatable, as those around the table well understood. Over his intractable demands on West New Guinea Sukarno came close to disrupting America's relations with the Dutch. The "compromise" that Robert Kennedy achieved in his mission to Jakarta had a grim aftertaste for The Netherlands.

But the important result was that the machinery of the Security Council had been effectively used under a new chief. As the meeting broke up the sense of on-going policy was strong.

West Germany

Railways Prosper

By NEAL ASCHERSON from Bonn

TO stand beside the tracks at Bonn and watch the trains go by is to receive an almost overwhelming impression of economic might. Up the long straight stretch beside the Rhine come flying the trains carrying cars for export through Bremen or Amsterdam—Opels and Mercedes and Volkswagens perched on a quarter-mile of double-decker wagons. From the north comes a train of huge tanker-wagons bound south, perhaps for the new industries by Frankfurt or the oil pipelines at Ingolstadt. One seems to stand there for a full five minutes waiting for the last of these barn-sized cylinders to show its red tail-light.

German passenger trains, too, confirm this feeling of wealth and power. They have brass bindings to the upholstery, blond wood panels and footrests. They travel as fast as the wind, with a floating smoothness that deceives. They sometimes have observation cars, any the express have incomparably simple and useful leaflets showing their timetable and connections from each stop. They are, it should be said, often very expensive.

The West German federal railways are prosperous now. Their deficit is falling, their staff is sinking in number (by natural unreplaced retirement) and their turnover is soaring from year to year. Yet the last 40 years of German railway history would not have encouraged one to expect such a revival.

After the First World War, the Deutsche Reichsbahn company was used by the victors as security for reparations. Like many Continental networks it had been constructed for motives partly strategic, and the state retained much control over its financing and its planning. Under Hitler's Third Reich the railways, though freed from the uneasy position of an allied hostage, were taken over completely by the state and became known simply as the "Reichsbahn." Though profits were made in the thirties, they were by Hitler's orders siphoned away from the "Reichsbahn" and used to finance the building of his system of autobahn super-highways. Reichsbahn construction workers were even used to build these roads.

Then came the war, and, as was to be expected under Allied air superiority, calamitous destruction.

The progress of the West German railways ("Bundesbahn") in the last six years is largely to the credit of the chairman of the railway executive, Professor Heinz Oetfing. At 60, this high-spirited and impatient man has already been a director of the Volkswagen works and president of the Federal Accounts Board. When he took over the railways in 1957, the deficit for the year was 678 million marks, but under Professor Oetfing's direction this loss has been cut by something like nine-tenths.

In 1950 there were some half a million men employed on the railways; the number has now sunk to about 400,000. The unions have dealt calmly and co-operatively with Oetfing, but this fall in numbers has taken place more rapidly than was expected, and the Bundesbahn has been obliged to employ large numbers of immigrant workers from Southern Europe.

This shrinkage of the work force, in a country with such a labor shortage that few go for long unemployed, has allowed the German railways to push ahead with experiments in automation. At present they are studying improvements on the "automatic coupling" of wagons, the pre-condition of effective shunting automation which was developed in the Soviet Union before the war and has been studied in Moscow and Leningrad by West German railwaymen.

Last month, Professor Oetfing took a party of journalists on the speed tests of a new train which reached 125 miles an hour. It is planned to put trains of this speed into service within a few years, in the ranks of the many first-class-only trains already on express routes.

Passenger traffic seems assured, now that the autobahns are becoming so crowded and the travelling public has accepted the idea of paying first-class prices to go on a faster train. What mostly concerns Professor Oetfing, and his train is freight competition, especially from the great canal and river systems of Germany. Here he feels that the railways are unfairly burdened by carrying their own costs and he would like to see the barges paying for Rhine dredging, road trucks for the construction of highways, and airlines for the ground control systems, all services which they receive extremely cheaply. If, indeed, they can be said to pay for them at all.

Adolescence Lecture Leads Off

Physical aspects of adolescence was the first lecture in the parent education series which opened Tuesday at Margaret Jenkins School.

This course, on adolescence, is one of three sponsored by the Metropolitan Board of Health.

The pre-school series of lectures will open Jan. 20 at Margaret Jenkins, and the series for the six-to-12 group starts Feb. 18.

Colonist Employee

Bessie Mason Funeral Friday

Miss Bessie Mason, a Colonist Printers Ltd. employee who was due to retire at the end of this month after 52 years of service, died suddenly Tuesday.

Miss Mason, who was born in England 70 years ago, had been in Vancouver to meet her sister, who was coming to the West Coast from Ottawa, and was apparently in good health when she returned home.

TAKEN TO HOSPITAL
She suffered an attack and was taken to hospital, where she died.

She is survived by three brothers, Richard in Saskatchewan, Robert and William, presman and printer respectively at the Victoria Press Ltd., a sister, Mrs. Alice Rivers, also of Victoria, two nephews and one niece.

Funeral services will be held in Hayward's Chapel at 4 p.m. Friday with the Rev. D. B. Sparling officiating. Cremation will follow and the family has requested no flowers be sent.

Gas Station Drive-In Possibilities

A service station or drive-in restaurant might be built on the northeast corner of Douglas and Hillside, which has been vacant since fire destroyed the Monterey restaurant Oct. 30, 1961.

Stephen Halom of Vancouver, president of Centennial Mortgage Corporation Ltd., which now holds title to the land, told the Colonist yesterday, "We will dispose of it shortly . . . to whoever makes the best offer."

He said there have been a lot of inquiries about the property, mostly from oil companies who want to build service stations there, and one from someone who wants to build a drive-in restaurant.

Two Victoria real estate firms, Ker & Stephenson Ltd. and Town & Country Realty Ltd., are handling the sale, said Mr. Halom.

Arabs Unite

all that these entail," the spokesman said.

"All Arab differences are on the way to being settled," the spokesman told a press conference after the leaders adjourned for dinner with President Nasser of the United Arab Republic.

BARE UNITY
The meeting of rulers has been a remarkable display of Arab unity in the light of frequent bitter feuds. They are united in enmity to Israel.

It is conceivable that certain responses to Israel's Jordan River project could lead to a war crisis but it is doubted that the Arab chiefs want at any time in the near future to raise the danger of open hostilities with the Israelis.

HEALING

The meeting led to a dramatic healing of relations between Nasser and King Hussein of Jordan and an announcement Wednesday night that relations had been resumed.

The last break in relations was in 1961 when Jordan recognized the revolutionary Syrian government which broke with Nasser's U.A.R.

ALSO SETTLED

The spokesman said in addition that the breach between Saudi Arabia and the U.A.R. over the revolutionary regime Nasser supported in Yemen has been "virtually settled."

The spokesman promised there would be a communique setting out the terms of the agreed resolution on counter-measures against the Israeli water program.

ONLY ONE VOTE
Reminded that Nasser had promised to make public actions in the summit conference, the spokesman replied, "The U.A.R. is only one member of the Arab League. If the conference itself decides otherwise, the U.A.R. has only one vote."

Sightseeing Firms See City

By IAN STREET

Sightseeing bus operators in Victoria yesterday indicated they would be willing to forego use during the afternoon rush hour of the curbside stands allotted to them by city hall.

The question of continued use of sightseeing stands on city streets was aired yesterday at a meeting of the city's advisory traffic committee held behind closed doors.

Representatives of six local sightseeing firms attended by invitation.

Ald. Millard Mooney, chairman of the advisory body, said no decisions were reached.

"We simply heard the views of the firms involved, and assured them we want to cooperate and are anxious not to create a hardship for anyone," he said.

City council and the traffic committee have in the past expressed a view that the growth of traffic on Victoria streets will sooner or later force sightseeing companies to operate from off-street stands.

Ald. Mooney said an increasing number of out-of-town tour buses seeking a location to unload and pickup their passengers in Victoria are adding to the general congestion.

Operators who attended the meeting were unanimous in urging no more permits be granted to local companies to operate from curbside stands.

But the representatives split over a suggestion that each of the present companies should be restricted to a single vehicle space. Hardest hit, if this were adopted, would be the horse-drawn Tallyho operation on Belleville.

It is planned instead to create a new route in the Beacon Hill Park-waterfront area and unload Tallyho passengers at the side entrance to the Strathcona Hotel.

Ald. Mooney said three new out-of-town tour companies have applied for space on Victoria streets to unload their day-trippers. No decision has been made yet on the applications, but the city last year created a special bus zone for this purpose on Douglas at the rear of the Empress Hotel.

Driver in Hospital

A motorist who first refused medical attention after his car rolled down a 40-foot embankment was in fairly good condition last night with head injuries.

John A. Henderson, 34, of 101 Lagoon, was taken to a tree, caving in the roof and throwing him clear.

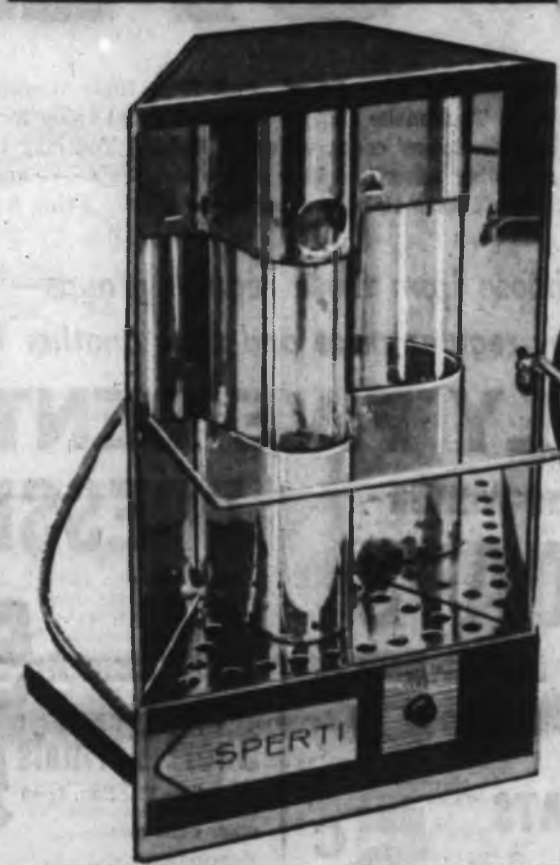

There was general agreement, however, that a ban on use of all curbside sightseeing stands during the rush hour between 4:30 and 5:30 p.m. would be acceptable.

The Tallyho sightseeing operation, now under new ownership, confirmed its horse-drawn vehicles would restrict their travel through the downtown area this summer, and eliminate the Rockland Avenue section of the old route.

Planes Buzz British

BRUNEI TOWN, Brunei (AP)—British military sources reported Wednesday planes bearing U.S. insignia have been buzzing British military installations along the Malay-Indonesian border in Borneo, where an undeclared war is being fought.

The sources said it was assumed President Sukarno's regime is either using U.S. surplus planes without bothering to paint on Indonesia's insignia or is intentionally flying under the U.S. insignia to give the impression the U.S. is backing Indonesia against Malaysia.

American-built B-24s, a Second World War type no longer used by the U.S. Air Force, have buzzed British airfields in Kuching, Sarawak, and in the jungle about 95 miles southeast of Brunei, the sources said.

British troops were reported under strict orders not to fire on the planes.

Tax 'Carrot' Would Stem Tide to U.S.

OTTAWA (CP)—A Vancouver businessman suggested Wednesday a new tax formula which he hoped would stop the flow of Canada's human resources to the United States.

"Something must be done to stem the tide," said Alexander K. G. Reid, president of Mutual Funds Management Corp.

PRODUCE CARROT

"Perhaps the easiest way to induce our people to stay in Canada is to produce a carrot." An attempt should be made to establish an attractive tax climate, he suggested.

As part of a new formula, Mr. Reid would divide taxpayers into three main groups — the business entity, the conduit entity and the personal entity.

The business entity would cover all companies, including co-operatives, that carried on any type of business.

NOT SUBJECT

The business entity would pay a flat 50-per-cent rate of income tax. Dividends paid by the firms to shareholders would not be subject to any additional tax.

The conduit entity, involving such enterprises as investment pools, would not pay any corporate tax. But it would be required to distribute all of its income to members, and it would be taxed at personal rates.

EXEMPT PENSIONERS

The personal entity would be the personal taxpayer. As a first step he would be given complete tax exemption for old age pensions, family allowances and dividends from taxable corporations.

After deducting this exempt income, he would pay a five-per-cent tax on income now considered the basic exemption—$1,000 for a single person. Beyond the basic level he would pay an additional 10-per-cent tax until his income reached $50,000, and after that his tax rate would jump by another 50 per cent.

One Missing Two Dead In U.S. Crash

CUMBERLAND, Md. (AP)—State police Wednesday found another crew member of the nuclear jet bomber that crashed in mountains near here Monday morning. He was dead.

A search plane spotted a parachute about five miles northwest of the crash scene. Tracks led away from it. Rescue teams battled their way through heavy snow to the spot where the airman was found.

He was the fourth member of the five-man crew to be accounted for. Two have turned up safely and another was found dead in the wreckage of the plane.

Bingo Fines Reduced To $2,000

TORONTO (CP)—Individual fines of $10,000 against six members of a Greek Orthodox Church for operating illegal bingo games were reduced Tuesday to $2,000 each by the Ontario Court of Appeal.

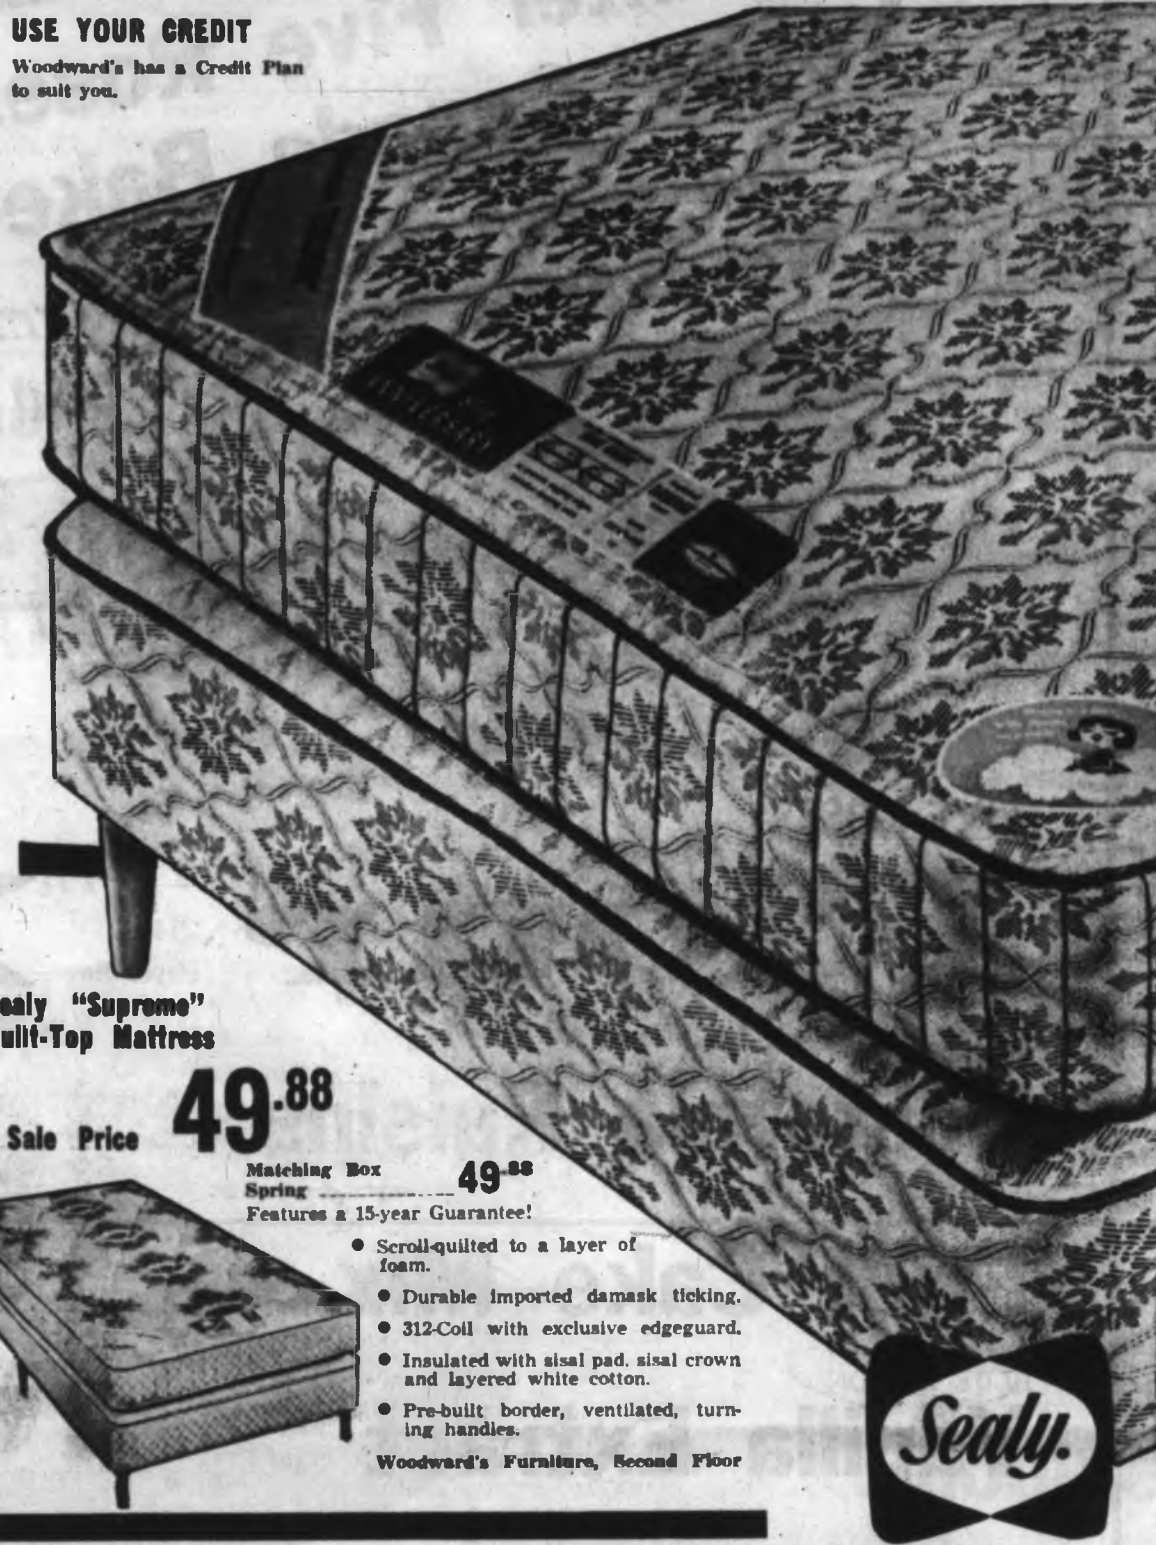

Mr. Justice Walter Schroeder said the games operated by the group were clearly illegal, but the original $10,000 fines or two years imprisonment imposed by Magistrate P. J. Bolshy were grossly excessive because none of the six made personal gains. Proceeds built a home for the aged.

Parliamentarians Meet

American Hints Action Ahead Against Canadian Tax Boost

WASHINGTON (CP) — Congressman Cornelius Gallagher says the U.S. delegation to the joint Canadian-U.S. interparliamentary conference has expressed "grave reservations" about the proposed increase in the Canadian withholding tax on foreign investment.

Unless the Canadian government takes steps to revise this law, "we will consider this as discriminatory and we will have to consider what steps to take in return," the New Jersey Democrat said Wednesday at the completion of the two-day interparliamentary meeting.

relations with Canada and hopes this relationship will always improve. He said also he looks forward to meeting with Prime Minister Pearson here next week.

Johnson met briefly with the delegates in the White House state dining room where Mrs.

Extra Jury Pay Rapped by Court

VANCOUVER (CP) — Hardship pay for jurors came under fire Wednesday by the B.C. Court of Appeal hearing an appeal for retrial of a fraud conviction on grounds of alleged court irregularities.

The court granted Malcolm McCusag a new trial but dismissed the appeals of David Friesen and Richard Shortridge.

The trio alleged jury members ate and drank beer with Friesen and Shortridge during recesses and that jurymen became concerned with their personal losses, lending prejudice to their trial.

Mr. Justice H. W. Davy said the practice of allowing jurymen special pay in a long trial is "dangerous" because "jurors might think special compensation would depend on some degree on the crown's satisfaction with the verdict they returned."

The panel of three judges granted McCusag a new trial because statements could have been made by the other two men which would prejudice the jury against him.

Driver 'Sort of Staggery'

Screams in the Fire

YORKTON, Sask. (CP) — A witness testified in court Wednesday a man charged with criminal negligence was "sort of staggery" the night he was involved in a flaming car crash that took the lives of five children.

FIVE OF NINE

Janet Smith was testifying during the second day of the trial of Peter Chad Martin, 21, of Wynyard, Sask.

Martin was charged after his car and another collided

Aug. 3 on a highway near Elton, Sask., and five of the nine children of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Katuski burned to death in the other vehicle.

Miss Smith said Martin appeared "staggery" when she saw him in Elton.

On Erickson testified he witnessed the car crash as he opened the door of his farmhouse 350 yards from the highway about 11:30 at night.

RACE TIME

He went to the scene and found Mr. Katuski standing atop his overturned car attempting to open the doors. Mr. Erickson said each time Mr. Katuski opened one of the doors there appeared to be an explosion.

He said he could hear the children trapped in the vehicle screaming.

CAR ON FIRE

Mr. Erickson testified he went to the other car and found Martin sitting in the front seat. He said when he told Martin to get out of the car, which was on fire, Martin said he would "have to get rid of his beer first."

Religion, Morals

Teaching Rules Clear
In New Quebec Law

QUEBEC (CP) — The re-drafted version of legislation setting up Quebec's first education ministry was brought down Wednesday on the second day of the new session.

The government said that despite changes, some of them based on suggestions from the province's assembly of Roman Catholic bishops, the bill "reproduces the essentials" of a measure introduced last June, then shelved.

CHANGES URGED

During the summer the bishops and many other religious and lay organizations interested in education proposed changes to the bill.

The denominational character of education in Quebec is being preserved, but the sections of the law dealing with teaching of religion and morals in the schools is "formulated in more clear and precise terms," the government said.

CAREFUL STUDY

Introducing the measure, Premier Jean Lesage said hundreds of suggestions received were carefully studied. He said second reading of the bill will be put off until Jan. 23 at the request of opposition leader Daniel Johnson.

The bill is among the most controversial proposed to the House in recent years because up until now education has been the almost exclusive preserve of the church.

The government also reintroduced its bill creating a "labor code"—a rewrite of seven existing labor relations law—and maintained the right to check-off of union dues.

The provision was one of the main points of the bill when it was first introduced in the legislature last year. The bill was discussed at public hearings, then shelved while the government studied suggested changes.

PUBLIC SERVICES

Many clauses, dealing with civil servants and employees of school boards, municipalities and hospitals, will undergo further study by a select legislative committee studying labor problems of public services.

Premier Lesage also introduced a measure revising procedures for contesting elections in the province.

A similar measure was introduced in 1962, but had not been approved when the house was dissolved for a provincial general election.

Mr. Lesage said the bill follows up last session's adoption of a new electoral law which took effect Jan. 1. Study of the 86-clause bill will be turned over to a special 15-member committee of the legislative assembly following second reading, the premier said.

PARIS (UPI) — A pipe-smoking "countess" who once served Gen. Dwight Eisenhower was summoned into court Wednesday on charges of plotting to assassinate Charles de Gaulle.

Self-styled French Countess Paule Rousset de Liffiac, a frail, grey-haired English teacher, was put on trial before the state security court along with two men.

DEATH POSSIBLE

The three are charged with participating in a Secret Army Organization plot to kill de Gaulle when he visited the Ecole Militaire, a leading military institution, last February. They could be sentenced to death if convicted.

De Gaulle was to have been shot from an upper window of the school as he crossed the courtyard, authorities said.

ON THE EVE

Mrs. de Liffiac, 56, who taught English at the school, and army Capt. Robert Peinard, 38, were arrested Feb. 14 on the eve of a police announcement that the plot had been discovered. Third defendant Jean Bichon, 51, was arrested later.

De Gaulle carried out the visit as planned. There was no trouble.

Mrs. de Liffiac, an interpreter for Eisenhower when he commanded the western armies in Europe, was to let the would-be assassins into the school the night before the intended slaying.

Varsity Petition Sparked By Fee Increase Report

The University of Victoria student council will circulate a petition today seeking support of a brief protesting a possible increase in tuition fees.

Council members agreed unanimously on the protest action at an emergency meeting called after Dr. John B. Macdonald, president of the University of B.C., warned tuition fees at UBC could be increased next year by $50 to $100.

FOLLOW SUIT

Student council fears the University of Victoria would follow suit because it would be difficult to explain disparity in fees.

A mass meeting of students has been called for at noon Monday in the auditorium at Lansdowne where council official Larry Devlin will explain the brief which will go to the board of governors.

COLD TERMS

Council hopes to collect 2,000 signatures in support of the brief which protests the possible increase in terms of cold finances rather than on principle.

Students going to university but living at home incur annual expense of $800 while those in residence pay $1,350. Average summer earnings of a male student are $800 while a female earns an average of $400.

RELY ON WORK

This means students must rely on work during the university term, scholarships and bursaries, loans and family assistance.

Mr. Devlin said work during the winter term impairs academic achievement and efficiency; it's unfair to ask parents for more money, particularly if they have other children in school; government scholarship and bursaries only average out to $10 per student.

"The financial position of the university does not necessitate an increase in tuition fees," Mr. Devlin said.

He was referring to the financial statement which showed the university had a surplus of $279,834 last year. He feels a fee increase might prevent some deserving students from entering university, allowing only people in the high financial brackets to attend.

B.C. PHILOSOPHY

This, he feels, would be contrary to British Columbia's "philosophy of universal education."

The student council feels it should deal through the board

45,000,000 Tons Iron Ore Goal

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's iron ore production will reach 45,000,000 tons a year by 1970, a senior mines department official predicts. Output last year was 27,000,000 tons. The forecast is included in a statement prepared by Jean-Paul Drolet, assistant deputy minister of the federal mines department, for the annual joint meeting of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy and the American Institute of Mining Engineers.

Startling Reminder

Model coffin, complete with "coffin nails" on top of cigarette machine, startled patrons of an Esquimalt inn Wednesday. Coffin was placed there by friends as reminder to pub owner of dangers of smoking. A 70-cigar-ettes-a-day man, owner gave it up Saturday.—(Ryan Bros.)

Vegetables

Cold Increases Florida Prices

MIAMI (UPI) — Sub-freezing cold that stabbed as far south as this semi-tropical resort city caused millions of dollars damage to Florida's valuable winter vegetable crops, officials said Wednesday.

The loss eventually will mean higher prices at the produce counter for housewives in northern cities.

Florida's citrus crop, a mainstay in the state's economy, escaped serious damage.

HARDEST HIT

The Miami county farming area apparently was hardest hit by the cold snap, which kept temperatures at the sub-freezing level for 11 hours overnight.

"The loss will no doubt run into the millions," said county agricultural agent John Campbell after touring fields of frost-shrivelled bean and tomato plants.

VERY HEAVY

"It is impossible to set any specific figure," Campbell said. "The loss will be very heavy for some individual farmers whose whole crops were knocked out."

The thermometer dropped into the teens in North Florida and into the low and middle 20s in central Florida.

Another Big One

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Another whopping twin double payoff—this time for $65,526.40—was registered at Tropical Park Wednesday.

Only last Saturday two men split a $75,000.20 for $2 payoff by picking the winners of the fifth, sixth, eighth and ninth races.

The winners of the races involved in the twin double Wednesday were Pitt, $14.60; Revistero, $15.00; Sweepstake, $9.20, and Gray Sibling, $26.40.

More Rest For Johnny

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP)—Jockey Johnny Longden, injured in a spill at Santa Anita Jan. 3, decided Wednesday to delay his return to racing.

Longden had been scheduled to ride Four-and-Twenty in Wednesday's ninth race. But he said he wants to wait a few days longer, until he is completely over the effects of his spill, before riding again. Ray York replaced him on Four-and-Twenty.

Longden suffered a rib injury and bruises in the fall.

Free-Skating Russians Crush Canadians, 8-1

MOSCOW (CP-AP)—The fast-skating, smooth-passing Russian Olympic hockey team trounced Canada's young Olympic squad 8-1 Wednesday night in an exhibition game.

About 15,000 Muscovites at the Sports Palace howled approval as the hard-working but outclassed Canadians were overwhelmed. Only a second-period goal by Marshall (Hayseed) Johnston kept the Canadians from being blanked.

The Canadians had arrived here by air during the day and seemed to show the effect of their long flight. However, Rev. David Bauer, their coach, offered no excuses for the crushing defeat.

NOTHING TO SAY

Father Bauer, who teaches at St. Mark's College at the University of British Columbia, said: "When you are beaten 8-1 there's nothing much you can say."

"The Russians were better. We were weak in all departments, except maybe goal," Bauer said, "and I'm not going to say anything to take any of the glory off the Soviet win. Our men are young men and this is good experience for Innsbruck."

Canadian observers who have seen the Soviet team play in North America the last two winters generally rate it as the Olympic favorite.

The winter Olympics open at Innsbruck, Austria, Jan. 27.

The Canadians now are midway in a 10-game European tour. The loss to the Russians was their first of the tour, on which they have won three and tied one.

In West Germany, the Canadian Olympians defeated E. V. Fuesen twice, 3-5 and 4-1 and downed Eric Mannheim 13-0. The Olympians were hard pressed to gain a 4-4 tie Monday night in Geneva against a team of Canadian pros and coaches who now perform in Europe.

Old Routines Still Big Hit

By JIM TANG

Harlem Globe Trotters did it again, and they'll do it again.

They brought out a near-capacity audience at Memorial Arena last night—5,123 officially—and there won't be many of them who won't be back the next time this talented troupe of athletic entertainers and their supporting cast come this way.

Sure, the routines were basically the same as they have been for years and it is true that there was a tendency to drag things out just a bit. But what counted was that everyone seemed to have fun and hardly anyone noticed those little items.

BETTER

There was still the ball-handling wizardry, and perhaps it keeps on getting just a bit better each year. There was Bob "Showboat" Hall, who may well be the down prince of basketball as claimed. And Murphy Simmons, a dribbler in the Globe Trotter tradition, and fellows like Walter Kennedy and Grady McCollum, who wouldn't look out of place on the Boston Celtics.

There was a basketball game, too, the Trotters outscoring their straight men, the San Francisco Golden Gaters, 91-80.

GOOD CLUB

The losers played their role well, but to anyone who cared to watch them, they shaped up as a pretty fair group of basketball talent. This could be particularly said of Bill Leedom, a humpy forward, and Wilbert Alexander, a little fellow by basketball standards.

Showing a fine eye for the basket, Leedom and Hall shared scoring honors with 25 points each, one more than garnered by Hall.

WORTH TRIP

But there was more than the Trotters to see. Each year their supporting vaudeville talent seems to get better and the before-game and mid-game entertainment was in itself worth the trip.

There were excellent ballerinas and acrobats and trampolinists. There was an outstanding juggler in Ramon Equeda and an exceptional unicyclist in Bob Foy.

And then there was the yummy Princess Elena. She was billed as an equilibrist but few were aware of that. It didn't matter what she did. Except for the very young, and they made up much of the crowd, and the very old, and there were those, too, all that counted was that she was there. Aren't you glad you were?

Speaking Briefly

Finley Gets 'the Word' From Lodge-Mates Today

Charles O. Finley makes his big pitch to the American League today, and the odds say that he'll get knocked right out of the park.

Finley wants to move his Kansas City Athletics to Louisville, but he needs the backing of six of the league's other nine teams to make it, and president Lee Macphail puts it, "I don't think he'll get one vote beside his own."

Detroit Tiger president John E. Fetzer says the odds are "1,000 to 1" that the Athletics will stay in Kansas City, and adds there is a chance the league itself may wind up running the franchise.

Close Call

Esquimalt edged Mt. Douglas, 24-23, yesterday in an inter-high school senior girls' basketball game at Esquimalt Gym.

Jane Bedford scored 10 points and Lorraine Hyne nine for Esquimalt, which led, 13-5, at the half.

Rangers Nip Leafs On Early Outburst

TORONTO (CP)—New York Rangers piled up a 5-1 lead in two periods, then held on to defeat Toronto Maple Leafs, 5-4 here Wednesday night as Leafs staged a tremendous rally in the third period. Leafs lost a chance to take over second place in the National Hockey League, while Rangers remained in fifth place.

The Rangers, now five points behind fourth-place Detroit Red Wings, stormed all over the Leafs in the first two periods. The Toronto club, normally a heavy checking crew, seemed reluctant to body check against the swift New Yorkers and time scored for Toronto.

Pappin added his second goal in the third, sandwiched between markers by Frank Mahovlich and Bob Pulford.

Montreal Canadiens, tied with Toronto in second place, three points behind Chicago Black Hawks, meet the Hawks tonight in Montreal.

The 14,007 fans in Maple Leaf Gardens, normally a loyal home side, booed the Leafs lustily throughout the first two periods.

BEHIND THE GLASS

By Jim Tang

CURLING CRISIS: Members of the Victoria Curling Club can probably count on six more years of activity at their Quadra Street location but the future after that is most uncertain. Their lease on the property on which the premises stand runs out in 1970 and, at the moment, there seems little chance that it will be renewed.

Although, as far as I know, there have been no official or even semi-official pronouncements on what the city has in mind for the curling club premises when the lease is up, it is reasonably certain that they figure in long-range plans for the development of the Memorial Arena-Royal Athletic Park area as a sort of a civic centre. It is extremely doubtful that by 1970 the city would entertain the thought of allowing the premises to be used for curling.

There seems only one solution, and that would be for the city to pay the Victoria Curling Club a fair price for its assets and for the club to relocate in another area in the district.

It may not be important to the area whether or not curling clubs are member-owned or operated as commercial enterprises by municipalities or private business but member-owned clubs are important to curling.

It was the member-owned clubs which were responsible for the fast growth of curling, and it was their members who governed the game during its growth. It is, of course, quite possible to have good curling in commercially-operated curling rinks but it can never be quite the same as having a club you can call your own. The camaraderie which was so responsible for curling becoming perhaps the No. 1 participant game in Canada came only from the joint interests of club members and it is doubtful, extremely doubtful, if it can be kept if the day ever comes when there are no member-owned clubs.

And this could happen in Victoria, which now has one privately-owned club, one municipally-owned club, one member-owned club practically at the crossroads and a second municipally-owned club in the offing. If the VCC can continue past 1970 as a member-owned club one can be quite certain that there will be better planning than went into the formation of the area's first curling club. It is now sinking in that erecting a $400,000 building on property you didn't own within walking distance of the centre of a growing urban area on a 20-year lease was the height of folly. One can only hope that everyone concerned will strive to work out the problem in a fair-minded manner, and soon.

TO BE EXPECTED: There seems to be quite a to-do about the disclosure that the rinks skipped by Ernie Richardson and Hec Gervais agreed to split the main prize (four new compact cars) when they reached the finals of the second annual Masters Curling Championships in Calgary but no one should be really surprised.

This should hardly be unexpected when the rewards are as high as the approximate $10,000 offered in the Masters. It is no secret that professional golfers have often made the same kind of an agreement, and it has probably been done in other sports as well.

And who can blame the people involved? Most of us would do exactly the same thing given the same opportunity. It's done in business every day and if curling one game for $10,000 isn't business then one could ask what it is. It certainly isn't amateur sport.

But it is an ill wind which blows no good. While there is no doubt that both rinks involved tried their level best to win, for the sake of prestige and the possession of the other prizes involved, it must have left the 5,000 or so spectators who paid to see the final feeling somewhat cheated.

This may be all to the good, if it discourages them from turning out at future events similar to this sponsored by promoters trying to make a living, or partial living, out of the game.

Carspools or other rich competitions designed to bring together the flower of curling have played a part in curling growth and probably have a place in the game. But time will prove, I'm sure, if it gets the chance, that private promotion to cash in on a game built on an almost-unique good fellowship engendered in member-owned clubs can not help but do curling almost irreparable damage. I, for one, hope the day never comes when there are professional and amateur curlers but it may be forced on us.

EXTRA END: Curlers attending the recently-completed Duncan bonspiel were loud in their praise of ice conditions but many were heard to remark that adoption of the old Alberni Valley Curling Club draw, which puts semi-finalists into the main competition, made it too much a "winners' bonspiel" . . . too much curling for the prize-winners and not enough for the losers, who are usually the majority.

But Robert of Richmond has won the Zone 1 women's playdowns and it appears as if Audrey Isamu will come out in Zone 2. The two winners will play off with the Vancouver Island and Fraser Valley zone champions at Burnaby in the district final . . . Bob Brynne and his Cowichan High School rink of Ian Robertson, Bob Windsor and Richard Harrison will represent the Island in the boys' high-school playdowns. The Duncan rink lost the first game of the Island final, 7-9, to Lorne Hodgins of Courtenay, then won, 10-5 and 9-4. The next step is regional play this weekend at Cloverdale against zone champions from the Lower Mainland and Fraser Valley, then the B.C. finals at Osoyoos, Jan. 25 and 26 . . . in men's playdowns in the Fraser Valley, Tony Falk of White Rock, Willie Falkland of Cloverdale, Ed Gao of Chilliwack and John Black of Abbotsford have come out as finalists. Two of them will make it to the Pacific Coast Curling Association finals, here next month, against two Island and two Lower Mainland rinks.

South Africa Gains Draw In Sydney

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuters)—Consistent batting by the South Africans, four of whom passed 40, enabled them to draw the third cricket Test with Australia here

AT THE 19th

With Harry Young

Stern competition from department stores and other sports outfitting firms is creating economic problems for golf pros in many parts of Canada, and particularly in Victoria.

The pros, who normally carry only the top line of the leading golf manufacturers, find they are losing most of their business to commercial firms who handle the "store line" goods of the same manufacturers.

Store-line goods are selling at anything from 30 to 40 per cent lower than the top-line carried in the pro shops, and the average golf club member finds this is more than his loyalty to the club pro can afford.

Pros are naturally reluctant to sell anything but the best, yet the big firms who also supply the stores, are not willing to risk their reputations by putting out "store line" goods that will not give satisfaction to the average golfer.

The operator of one local store dealing in golf equipment believes that the pros have only themselves to blame for not running the cheaper lines.

"We are not undercutting prices," he said. "We take the normal mark-up on our golf equipment, and it would seem to me that the pros would have no difficulty in recapturing their business if they sold the same goods as we do, and at our level of prices."

Recently one top-line golf ball was offered in a department store at 88 cents. It sells at $1.25 in the pro shops, and one pro complained that his wholesale price was actually higher than the department store was asking for the same ball.

Hard-pressed pros also complain that they are more liable to delayed settlements and bad debts than the downtown merchant.

They point out they can hardly afford to refuse credit to a member of the club, and they are equally unwilling to press settlement of overdue accounts.

One Pacific Northwest club in the U.S. has helped its pro considerably by doing the billing for him. Those who don't pay up are liable to find themselves listed—not by the pro, but by the club.

John Carlow was elected president of Gorge Vale Golf Club for the eighth time at the club's annual general meeting Monday. Former president of B.C. Golf Association, John has been at the Gorge Vale helm at a period when the club has greatly improved its playing and clubhouse facilities.

Vice-president will again be Col. H. G. F. Morgan, while Albert Robertson becomes club captain in place of Sid Holland, who did not stand for re-election.

Albert Francis was re-elected to another two-year term as director, and three newcomers to the board are Norman Cain and Thomas MacIntyre (two years) and Mrs. Eva Cann (one year).

The meeting also voted in favor of a $10 assessment on men and women members for a further expansion of the clubhouse.

The present ladies' room will become part of the dining room, adding 15 feet to the length of that room, and a new ladies' lounge will be built over the one-story caddy cart building. The assessment includes provision for new dining room furniture and new furnishings for the ladies' lounge.

Ron MacLeod had his putting working well for him at Uplands Sunday when his two-under-par 69 gave him a four-stroke lead in the first round of the second district winter medal competitions.

On the 72 mark are Norm Boden, Bill Wakeham, Claude Hoggie and Roger Ross. Cliff Soborg was 73 and Laurie Carroll and Harold Jacobson 74.

Most of the players complained of the heavily grassed greens, which demanded "blacksmith" touch putting, but MacLeod stroked them all in firmly to show it could be done.

Butt play will be at Gorge Vale Sunday with Laurie Carroll and Ron MacLeod of Victoria defending against Ardmore's two left-handers, Harold Jacobson and Emil Beauchemin.

Junior holders Earl Francis and Rick Bath oppose West MacKay and D. Butler of Royal Colwood.

The new RCGA handicapping system by which the player records the difference between his score and the rating of the course on which he is playing, instead of his actual score, appears to have gone into operation smoothly in the Victoria district.

Most of the clubs have already effected the change, and in most cases there have been no change in handicap. However, in addition to moving to the differential system, the RCGA has also slightly amended its rating formula, and there are individuals who find that they have lost one, or even two, handicap strokes.

Canadian Ice Stars Sweep Medal Tests

VANCOUVER (CP)—Barbara Wagner and Bob Paul, the Toronto figure skating pair who won four world championships and one olympic pairs championship for Canada, Sunday captured the Canadian bronze, silver and gold pairs medals at the Kerrisdale Figure-Skating Club.

They passed the tests to become the first skaters in Canada to achieve such an honor. In a marathon exhibition that lasted three-quarters of an hour, they passed all three tests, scoring substantially over the minimum passing marks.

Last Wednesday, Barbara and Bob, 26, won their American gold test in Seattle, where they were performing as headliners with the Ice Opades professional show.

Head referee Bill Lewis said of the couple's performance: "They skated towards perfection on all three tests."

Three judges marked the couple on technical merit and artistic impression.

When they won their American tests, they became the first professional skaters to win such distinction in the U.S. It was the first time since 1956 that the couple had attempted a figure skating test.

PAAVO NURMI

Nurmi Back on Broadway

'If I Were Younger...'

NEW YORK (AP)—Take away 40 years, add an up-to-date coach and a good climate for training and Paavo Nurmi of Finland might be taking dead aim at today's sub-four-minute milers.

Nurmi, a broad grin spreading over his wrinkled face and his bald head shining like it did under the lights of Madison Square Garden when he last ran there nearly 35 years ago, is back in this country to pick up a couple of awards.

Speaking through an interpreter Wednesday, he talked at length about the changes in training methods since the 1920s.

He was the best runner of his time at distances anywhere from 100 metres to 10 miles. He won seven Olympic gold medals from 1920 through 1928, set scores of records and still thinks he might have won the Olympic marathon in 1932 if he had been allowed to compete. He was barred when his amateur status was questioned.

"It is hard to say now how low my times would have been if I had concentrated on the mile," he said. "But if somebody had run a four-minute mile then, I would have tried to beat it. If I were 40 years younger, I wouldn't be afraid of the records they have nowadays."

Nurmi, just short of 67, has almost as much hair as he had when he first ran in the United States in 1925. At 150 pounds, he's only about six pounds heavier. He came here this time to attend sports dinners in Boston on Jan. 21 and in New York on Jan. 25, when a group of oldtime Olympians will be honored.

Nurmi only attends track meets occasionally in Finland but since his last race in 1935 he has continued to study training methods. He thinks a lot of his training program, considered unique in his days, was a waste of time.

Martin Rink Team to Beat

NANAIMO—Flora Martin and her Victoria Curling Club combination will again be the rink to beat when the Vancouver Island ladies' curling playdowns open at the Nanaimo Curling Club tonight.

Making her sixth appearance in the zone final, Mrs. Martin will be challenged by six other club champions in a round-robin playoff which ends for a lone draw tonight at 9, draws on Friday at 9 a.m. and 1 and 7 p.m. and on Saturday at 8 and 11:30 a.m. and 9 p.m.

If a playoff is necessary it will be held on Sunday morning at 8. Draw will be made on the arrival of the opposing skips.

Victoria will be represented by three rinks. In addition to Mrs. Martin, there are Helen Emerich of Allan's Curling Club and Mary Brilling of Esquimalt.

Evelyn Straker will represent the Alberni Valley Curling Club, Frances Sarjeant the Nanaimo Curling Club, Lil Grandage the Comox Valley Curling Club and Mary Harper the Duncan Curling Club. Mrs. Harper, wife of the defending B.C. men's champion, Glen, has as her vice-skip Ada Fuller, who played last season for Mrs. Martin.

Island winner will take part in district playdowns at Burnaby Winter Club, Jan. 24-26, and the district winner goes on to the provincial final at Prince George, Feb. 9-11.

Make-up of rinks:

ALLAN'S CC—Helen Emerich, Flo Brown, Pat Giesse, Doris Gordon.

Time for Topsoil

By M. V. CROSBY, FRES

If any of my readers can manage to get their hands on a load of really good, humusy topsoil, it can certainly be put to good use about now. All of the herbaceous perennials appreciate a generous topdressing of fresh soil over their roots and will often develop a whole new set of vigorous young feeding roots in the layer of new soil. With this improved root system, the plant's performance will be just that much better next summer.

The same soil, ideally with some well rotted leaves mixed in, can be spread to a depth of three inches over a patch of lilac-of-the-valley and will do wonders for these shy bloomers.

Strawberry plants have a tendency to work themselves up out of the ground and can do with a few barrow loads of rich soil spread between the rows. This is much better than pulling up the existing soil around the crowns with the draw hoe, for the removal of the between-rows soil can expose the delicate root tips.

Another place where a supply of first grade topsoil can be put to good use is in the rock garden. Soil will often tend to wash down from the higher levels to the lower pockets as a result of persistent winter rain, and many of the plants in the upper pockets will be in need of a topdressing to cover the exposed roots.

Moving soil from one part of the garden to another can be a beast of a job at this season of the year. I refuse utterly to touch a wheelbarrow when the ground is muddy, for the mud picks up on the wheel and gets spread all over the gravel and cinder paths. On clay soil in particular, it is bad business even to walk on it in wet weather, much less push a loaded harrow over it, for such compacted soil will dry out and harden into a brick-like texture in the spring.

The trick here is to remove the wheeling of soil, manure, rocks and such loads for frosty weather when there is a sufficient crust of frost in the soil to sustain the weight of the barrow. Better not wheel any loads across a frosted lawn, though, for this is very bad for the grass. Put down boards wherever grass must be crossed.

I think that most gardeners now-a-days know all about the value of soot in the garden—how it acts as a mild fertilizer and as a bug repellent in the soil. It isn't so generally realized, however, that coal dust can be mighty useful too.

Folks who burn coal can use the dust and slack on lilies, delphiniums and similar plants, as even a light dusting over the surface helps enormously to keep those voracious slugs at bay. The old-fashioned tiger lilies in particular are early risers and it won't be very long now before they will be poking their noses out. These first shoots to appear always take quite a beating from slugs if no protection is given.

Coal slack sifted through a half-inch sieve does a grand job too on heavy, sticky soil. Such clayey soil has a nasty habit of caking and forming a crust as it dries out, and a layer of coal dust on the surface will prevent this unhealthy condition. The dust will also provide an area of good drainage in the region of the stem bases, where out plants are most vulnerable to rot infections.

Pipemanship

By CHARLES McDOWELL

Smoking a pipe is an art, not a nervous habit like smoking cigarettes, and must be approached as an art.

All these people who are suddenly taking up the pipe should understand what is expected of them. There is more to it, friends, than coughing a lot and smelling bad.

The first objective of the beginning pipe-smoker should be an appearance of experience. Nobody is more unsettling for those around him than a pipe-smoker who is not sure of himself—although a pipe-smoker who is sure of himself comes in a close second.

You will need more than one pipe. Buy one to smoke and several to scatter around your home and office and in your raincoat pockets. Here the beginner has an advantage over the veteran. The beginner can acquire cheap pipes not to smoke rather than not smoking expensive and exotic ones.

In choosing a tobacco, go for an off-brand and wear by it. Better yet, buy three off-brands, mix them, and refuse to divulge the brands.

Keep your basic supply of tobacco in a can, which also should contain half of a very old potato or a piece of orange peel. These things do something about the humidity. If you use potato, quarrel a little with those who use orange peel, and vice versa.

If your wife gives you a humidifier, keep golf balls in it.

Carry a portable supply of tobacco in a pouch on your person. Always carry it in the same pocket but always put all the other pockets in a preoccupied way before you find it.

Use the roll-type pouch. Learn to unroll it with a flourish to punctuate dramatic passages in your conversation, or to distract others who are talking pompously.

When dipping your pipe into gently, with great concentration, as if breathing life into an icon.

Do not allow the eyes to cross in an attempt to focus on the bowl of the pipe, to determine whether it is lit. Crossed eyes ruin the effect of the entire performance.

Some beginners worry unnecessarily about achieving a properly contemplative frown while smoking their pipe. Actually, it is automatic. The so-called contemplative frown is the natural expression when the facial muscles are gripping a heavy object in the teeth.

When the pipe goes out, which will be soon in most cases, knock out the ash and unburned tobacco on some resonant surface. Be brisk and loud. Emulate the woodpecker.

Now, tend the pipe. Use a small tool of some kind to scrape it and poke it for a while. Take it apart. Gaze at the grain of the pipe. Blow through the stem smartly, like a boatwain. Say something about ducts. Poke at it some more. Reined it if you must.

A pipe requires a lot of tending, and that is really the point of having a pipe anyway.

Remember, when you are tending a pipe you don't have to smoke it.

The Little World of SHEILAH GRAHAM

Newmans Not Parting

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—Joanne Woodward called to thank me for going out on a limb. "Where do these rumors start?" Joanne asked me. I had no sooner put the phone down, when a chum called with a scoop: "The Newmans are separating." "Not true," I told her. The rumors will start up again when Joanne leaves for New York ahead of Paul, "to get some furniture for our new apartment in New York." Early in February the Newmans start rehearsals in New York for their play, Baby Wanna Kiss. They have signed to appear with the play for four months. "Then," Joanne told me, "we will spend several months in our Westport home." It certainly doesn't sound like a marriage break-up, does it?

Dennis Day says he will be remaining with the Jack Benny show through the switch to NBC. . . and James Garner is spending some of his big movie money, financing TV pilots. . . and if they tied all the unused TV pilots in Hollywood from end to end, they would encircle the globe many times.

Sophia Loren is a vibrant girl who puts everything she has into her acting. And she put a great deal into their love scenes with Burt Reynolds in The Fall of the Roman Empire. Remember this when you see the film—with Sophia it is acting, not love-making. "True," sighs Mr. Boyd.

George Hamilton was discussing the realism of today. "I'm all for it but there's nothing wrong with escapism if you know what you're escaping from." . . . They had thought of putting Audrey Hepburn into a bathtub scene for My Fair Lady but decided she was too thin.

A pity Charles Laughton is not around to read the glowing accounts and awards won by his protegee, Albert Finney for Tom Jones and Luther. Charles discovered Finney acting in the British provinces, took him to London and gave him a role in his play. And introduced him to professional Shakespeare at Stratford-on-Avon.

It was merely a question of time before they signed Zero Mostel to play Hercules Poirot for the screen. I had thought Agatha Christie's detective with the famed mustaches was a bit thinner than Zero but you can't have everything.

After seven years of wearing buckskins and guns for his Cheyenne series, you must forgive Clint Walker for plunging in the wardrobe department for his new picture, Send Me No Flowers. He aims to be as well-dressed as co-stars Rock Hudson and Doris Day. But it's back to the moccasins for his following film for Miss Day's husband, Marty Melcher, Machine Gun Chubasco, to be made in Mexico in April.

Don't Confuse Facts with Knowledge

Einstein once said that if he were given a single choice as between knowledge and imagination, it would be the latter he would want.

Too many people, however, are under the false impression that education takes place any time and anywhere we expose people to the facts.

The age of science has spawned a host of theories about life which appear to be scientific because they are factual. But while the sum total of facts may supply us with data—useful and sometimes indispensable—they do not necessarily endow us with truth or vital understanding.

One punster put his finger on the nub of the question. He said: "You can lead a man to knowledge but you can't make him think."

Thinking—if it is to be creative and adventurous—is more an art than a science. And the cultivation of the art of thinking depends more on imagination than on knowledge alone.

Advises DR. STUART ROSENBERG

Indeed they are correct who insist on "knowing the facts." "tabulating the results," "adding up the averages," or "analyzing the statistics."

To get to the unknown we must first know as much as we can about the known. But the "known" is not the same as the "knowable." If we don't soar above the ground we shall forever remain land-locked peasants.

Ironically, in no other field of human endeavor does imagination play so significant a role as in scientific work itself.

The great modern discoveries were not found by scientists who were nothing more than human computers. They were made by men who were capable of clearing new paths — of making a breakthrough.

They were not satisfied with adding up the columns and counting the known facts or figures. Literally they broke away from the facts.

Thomas Edison once consoled his overworked and almost-despairing assistants with this incisive bit of wisdom: "Don't be upset because we have conducted 50,000 experiments which have failed. We didn't fail! On the contrary: We now know 50,000 wrong ways. This will help us to get to know the right way."

There are times when the right answer can lead to confusion rather than to delightful discovery. If it is too easily given, too quickly found, a "correct" answer may be merely a slick substitute for thought, a glib slogan rather than a thoughtful conclusion.

Contrarywise, the wrong answer, in the hands of imaginative people, may be instructive and may even serve creative purposes.

Knowing what won't work can help us to understand why it won't work and thus open up new possibilities for open-eyed imagination to work on.

When we are forced to wrestle with a problem we are made to cut our intellectual teeth on the raw material which may yet yield a sharper and more incisive finished product.

People who are convinced that facts are the equivalent of real knowledge often jump to hasty conclusions. Their thought finishes before it begins; they fail to grow in depth. Their little knowledge, because it lacks imagination, is a dangerous thing.

They think that they know, but do not know how to think—deeply, courageously and imaginatively. True, they have acquired some knowledge. But they have missed the real reward which knowledge can bring—wisdom.

Mine Tunnel Machine Big Change

VMD in 'Revolution'

By JACK FREY

Victoria Machinery Depot is taking part in the development of new tunnelling equipment which might revolutionize the mining industry, it was learned last night.

Several firms in B.C. and the U.S. are involved in the design of equipment which was ordered for use in drilling the Greater Victoria water board's 5½-mile tunnel to link Sooke Lake with the water system.

NOT SIGNED

VMD president Harold Hubbard said contracts have not been signed yet and it is not known how much of the work will be done by his firm.

He was hopeful, however, the project will lead to more contracts for more equipment.

Details of the operation were outlined by Jack Greenwood, Jr., secretary-treasurer of Intermountain Construction Ltd. of North Vancouver, which has a $1,500,000 contract with the Greater Victoria water board.

SEATTLE FIRM

VMD worked on the design of a tunnelling machine — known as "the mole" — in conjunction with the Seattle firm of James S. Robbins, which was awarded a $230,000 contract for the machine about one month ago, he said.

But, the mole is supposed to tunnel some 10 feet an hour, about four times as fast as conventional drilling and blasting methods, and could burrow faster than men could load waste material into ore trucks by hand.

To overcome this problem, VMD engineers were asked to modify a piece of train loader equipment being manufactured by a firm in Wallace, Idaho, said Mr. Greenwood.

Mexican in Ontario

Gem-Carrying Visitor Pays $25,500 for Visit

COOKSVILLE, Ont. (UPI) — It cost a Mexican diamond merchant $25,500 in diamonds and a $500 fine Wednesday because he failed to declare the jewels when he entered Canada last Nov. 24.

Joseph Mendel Eder, 50, of Mexico City, was arrested at Toronto International Airport as he was leaving the country after a one-day visit to his daughter's home.

NEW YORK CLAIM

Police told Magistrate H. T. G. Andrews that Eder said he had bought the gems in New York. There were 60 diamonds stuck between strips of adhesive tape and wrapped in a package Eder was carrying in his pocket.

Eder pleaded guilty to violating the Canada Customs Act, and the diamonds were confiscated.

TEMPORARY

Const. Kenneth Booker explained to the court Eder would not have to pay duty or sales tax for bringing the diamonds into Canada on a temporary basis. However, he said, if sold in Canada, they would be subject to a $2,700 sales tax paid by the purchaser.

"It seems the government is in $25,000," Magistrate Andrews said.

approaching the production stage after some 10 to 15 years of designing, will ever be used with a train loader, he said.

THREE VISITORS

Jack Greenwood, Sr., president of Intermountain Construction, and two men from the Idaho firm were in Victoria Tuesday to talk with water board officials, view the tunnel route and see the new equipment at VMD.

"We were very pleased both with the people we met at VMD and the equipment," the company spokesman said.

"It will revolutionize mining techniques . . . and if VMD can get a good price, they will probably be manufacturing equipment for world export," Mr. Greenwood said.

Intermountain is a subsidiary of Nelson Machinery Co. Ltd. of North Vancouver, which is a distribution outlet of the train loaders manufacturer in Idaho.

Nelson Machinery plans to sell on the world market the new type of loader — which can work inside an 8½-foot-diameter tunnel — if VMD can turn out the machines at a price competitive enough for the American firm to produce them in Victoria instead of Idaho, said Mr. Greenwood.

A penalty would be imposed but, under the Customs Act, Eder could get the diamonds back by petitioning the customs and excise branch.

If he doesn't, the jewels would be sold through tender or auction with the proceeds going to the federal government.

Student Crime Fought

VANCOUVER (CP)—ECMP, probation and school security representatives met Wednesday to map plans for a full-scale crackdown on crime by Burnaby high school students.

The meeting asked student representatives to attend a Jan. 24 gathering to complete plans. A report presented at the meeting said 14 Burnaby students were convicted of liquor offences last year and another 28 were convicted on other charges.

The crackdown resulted from a report by William Westcott, a school board security officer, that alcoholics and others hanging around liquor stores were enticing students to drink, while in other cases students were bringing home-made liquor into schools to sell it to fellow students.

'Hitler Was a Jew'

Oldtime Nazis Threaten Auschwitz Prosecutors

FRANKFURT, Germany (UPI) — Prosecutors in the trial of 22 men accused of taking part in the murders of 2,500,000 to 4,000,000 inmates of Hitler's Auschwitz death factory said Wednesday they have received scores of threatening letters from "old Nazis."

"Since the trial opened last month, we have received an average 10 to 20 letters a day," said prosecutor Joachim Kuegler.

"Some are threats from old Nazis, some come from crackpots and a few from people who approve of our work," he said.

"We are accustomed to threats. We are not particularly worried. We don't even carry arms for our protection," he said.

Kuegler declined to name the letter-writers or give the nature of the threats.

One letter criticized the trial of the men who allegedly helped run Hitler's biggest extermination camp "because only converted Jews were killed by orthodox Jews there," Kuegler said.

The letter claimed Hitler and Reinhard Heydrich, the Nazi "protector" of Bohemia and Moravia killed by Czech resistance fighters, "were Jews who became tools of the Zionists who wanted to get rid of their converted brethren and then blame it on the Germans."

A number of writers charged the trial was a one-sided affair because "it deals only with our war criminals," Kuegler said.

Others complain "nobody tries the Czechs and Poles who killed hundreds of thousands of Germans after the war."

Queen's Visit Hinges On Birth of Baby

LONDON (UPI)—A Buckingham spokesman Wednesday denied reports that the Queen would visit Canada later this year.

Queen Elizabeth's engagements for the year "hinge on the birth of her fourth baby, expected in March," the palace spokesman said. "No engagements, at home or overseas, have been announced."

Cariboo Diocese

Anglicans Ask Welfare Probe

KAMLOOPS (CP)—A call for an impartial investigation of B.C.'s social welfare needs was issued Wednesday by Anglican church officials here.

The council of social service of the Anglican diocese of Cariboo supported a plea by Mrs. Bridget Moran of Prince George, a part-time social worker who asked for better facilities and more social workers to alleviate heavy case loads.

Rev. R. S. Dean, Anglican bishop of Cariboo, attended the meeting.

Rev. R. D. MacRae of Kamloops, a trained social worker and chairman of the diocese council, said the problems reported at Prince George were prevalent here.

Of 14 provincial and municipal welfare workers in Kamloops, only one is a trained worker.

PLUGGING FINGER

"The system seems to be short-range in outlook—a plugging the finger in the hole," said Mr. MacRae. "Many so-called permanent cases could be removed from welfare lists if intensive case work were possible."

Until the government takes steps to make the social welfare employee a trained social worker with university training, B.C. would have a "short-range and wasteful approach."

8,000 Doctors

Threaten Strike

BRUSSELS (AP)—A spokesman for 8,000 of Belgium's 18,000 doctors said Wednesday they will strike if the government insists on enforcing its new health insurance law.

Most doctors and dentists in two of the country's provinces are already on strike. The spokesman said other doctors would answer a call for a general strike, but would treat emergency cases.

Must Remind U.S. Laing Tells Canada

VANCOUVER (CP)—Canada's future depends on a "clear understanding" with the U.S., Northern Affairs Minister Laing said Wednesday.

He told the B.C. Truck Loggers' Association convention Canada now sells 54 per cent of its exports to the U.S.

while buying 62 per cent of her imports.

"It is important to remind them again and again of the need to conduct our Canadian economy on the basis where we can give more and more people work."

The bright spot is B.C., which is selling $300,000,000 more in goods to the U.S. than it is importing.

Death Hearing Ends

Marsi Lie Test Ruled Out

WHITEHORSE, Y.T. (CP)—Preliminary hearing on a charge of capital murder against Karoly Marsi, 32, concluded Wednesday with Magistrate W. J. Trainor reserving decision to today.

Marsi is charged in the death of Henri Meriguet, 20, a university student from France who disappeared in August, 1962, while tracing the footsteps of a grandfather who had taken part in the Klondike gold rush of 1898.

TEST RULED OUT

The last witness to appear at the hearing, which started Jan. 7, was Sgt. Milton Dunkworth of the Alaska State police. He attempted to introduce evidence obtained in a lie test to which Marsi submitted. Magistrate Trainor ruled the evidence was not admissible.

The magistrate said the test might be used to break down the credibility of the principal witness at a point in his trial where he has not yet given evidence.

Geza Bordas, a violinist and leader of a Whitehorse gypsy orchestra, testified he was planted by the RCMP in the Whitehorse jail to get information from Marsi.

Mr. Bordas said he and Marsi were in jail together for eight days last month.

He said they had adjacent cells and talked in Hungarian. Magistrate Trainor said he felt a natural reluctance to hear Bordas' evidence but ruled in favor of admitting it.

Starting Today

Varsity Students To Get Discounts

Five Victoria businesses will give University of Victoria discounts on purchases starting today for a three month trial period.

Roger Barnsley, chairman of the Canadian Union of Students, said that a gas station, hairdresser, a florist and two entertainment businesses have agreed to discounts but he did not name them.

At the end of three months students and businessmen will meet to discuss student support of the stores and if the discount stores have been supported it is expected that the practice will be continued.

"This is just a trial period," he said.

Members of the University of Victoria Alma Mater Society are members of the CUS which has organized discount plans in other areas.

contracting of the job was quite normal.

A youth yesterday pleaded guilty in Victoria magistrate's court to ringing false fire alarms.

David Tryman, 18, of 1838 Crescent, was arrested in company with three other youths in a car early yesterday, court was told. One of the other youths faces trial in juvenile court and the other two have been released.

Victoria Const. Lerne Shandley testified that false fire alarms had been rung at McCaskill and Pine Streets and at Ellice and Rock Bay.

NANAIMO—Joe Sutton, re-elected president of the Nanaimo Old Age Pensioners' organization, told a meeting here he would lead a fight against fluoridation of the Greater Nanaimo water supply.

Edward J. C. Wood, managing director of Pimlott's Transfer and Storage Limited, Victoria, testified that the price of moving the furniture to Whalley would have been $222.80.

He said that Pimlott's got the moving job by tender from the defense department and subcontracted it to Blue and White Moving and Storage Company Limited, Blithers' company, which actually did the work and to which Pimlott forwarded the government payment, less a discount.

Mr. Wood testified that Blithers had first telephoned him to tell him of the job in mid-June. He said the sub-

The Crown alleges that the furniture was actually moved only as far as Whalley, in the Vancouver area.

Decision Today on Trial In Moving Fraud Charge

A decision is expected today on whether to commit for trial two men accused of conspiring to defraud the national defense department of several hundred dollars.

Victoria moving company president Leonard Blithers and former soldier G. A. W. Pope, now living in New Westminster, face charges of conspiracy in connection with the moving of Pope's furniture on his release from the army last summer.

LATENESS OF HOUR

A preliminary hearing in Victoria magistrate's court, expected to end yesterday after several long adjournments, finally was adjourned to today because of the lateness of the hour.

It was testified yesterday that the army paid a moving firm $54.35 to move Pope's

Nation-Wide Pact Won by Hoffa

CHICAGO (UPI)—The Central Conference of U.S. Teamsters early today followed the recommendation of president James Hoffa and accepted a precedent-setting nationwide trucking contract.

The contract came under a Hoffa threat to call a nationwide strike if agreement were not reached by midnight last night.

The contract carried provisions for a 25-cent wage increase spread over three years—10 cents the first year, 8 cents the second year and 10 cents the third year.

The teamster membership must vote on the settlement.

Trial Denied

MONTREAL (CP)—Georges Marcotte, 34, condemned to be hanged as the Santa Claus bandit who murdered two policemen in December, 1962, was denied a new trial Wednesday by the Quebec Court of Appeal. An appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada is expected.

Indian Relic Saved

VANCOUVER (CP)—An employee pledged his savings to the city museum could obtain a rare Indian relic that American collectors were seeking. It was disclosed Wednesday.

A three-piece giant potlatch bowl, carved 80 years ago by the late Mungo Martin, was found at upstate Kingston's Inlet by a commercial firm that paid cash on the spot.

The firm offered the bowl to the city museum for $1,500, the basic cost plus transportation, but museum officials turned down the offer because the museum officials turned down the offer because the museum budget for acquisitions was only $300—and that was spent some time ago.

An unidentified employee pledged $1,500 from his personal savings if the museum could find some way of raising the money in the future. The Art, Historical and Scientific Association of Vancouver guaranteed payment and gave the bowl to the city from.

Robert Drake, curator of the museum, said the bowl is an irreplaceable example of the ancient art of the Kwakwaka'nan Indian tribe. U.S. collectors had offered $4,500, and more offers were coming in, he said.

Barrie, Toone Labor Choices

Victoria Labor Council last night re-elected president R. C. Barrie and secretary-treasurer A. W. Toone, both for their eighth terms.

E. T. Staley and C. A. Peck were both returned as first and second vice-presidents.

Committee chairmen are James Moffat, credentials; John Nichol, education; Fred Bevis, legislation; John Barbillon, organization; William Donnelly, political education; Jack Chapman, public relations, and Harry Anderson, unemployment. Joseph Brooks is sergeant-at-arms.

The normal one-hour bite of the Mothers' March campaign will be extended to three hours this year.

The porchlight march will be held from 4 to 7 p.m. Feb. 3 to allow canvassers to cover all of their areas. It was learned at a campaign-opening rally last night. Outlying areas will start a week earlier.

Officials have set no objective but hope to exceed last year's $42,000. About 2,500 marching mothers are needed and volunteers are asked to telephone 338-5816.

Cause of a fire which did $500 damage to a boathouse owned by Rev. R. E. J. Toms, 1625 Hollywood, will be investigated by police.

The blaze was noticed by Mrs. Toms about 7 p.m. yesterday.

and while Mr. Toms went out to try to stop it with a garden hose she phoned firemen. The boathouse was empty except for some driftwood gathered by Mr. Toms.

"I don't think it was just a cigarette that was thrown in. That building was too solid to go up like that," said Mr. Toms.

Victoria Labor Council has voted to circulate a petition in this area urging enactment of legislation for a Canada pension plan. The petition will be sent to the House of Commons on completion.

Timber-Cut Curb Delayed

VANCOUVER (CP)—The government delayed a restriction of timber cutting on the coast due to complaints from loggers, Forests Minister W. H. Lister said Wednesday.

The action was deferred from Jan. 1 to at least July 1 pending a recheck by the B.C. Forest Service of timber inventories in sustained yield units.

The first log scale returns showed timber sale licences have been overcutting coast forests, Mr. Lister told the B.C. Truck Loggers' Association.

To Address Students

Racist Here Today

Governor George Wallace of Alabama will visit the University of Victoria today to address a political science forum at noon in the lower lounge of the Student Union Building at Gordon Head.

Larry Devlin, student council president, expressed pleasure that the governor's visit is his only stop in Canada. "It's a coup for the university and the political science forum," Mr. Devlin said. Governor Wallace in June last year defied a U.S. federal court order to permit

Negro students admission to the all-white University of Alabama with the result that federal marshals and troops were called in. He dramatized his opposition to integration by standing in the doorway of the university and barring the students entry.

He will arrive this morning in his private plane and will leave immediately for Alabama after addressing the students on the rights of sovereign states. His visit is an extra stop on a tour of speaking engagements mostly on campuses on the U.S. west coast.

Wallace

Ex-Freedom Rider:

Don't Act, Ask Students Told

Don't demonstrate, but ask probing questions. This is the advice of former Victorian Michael Audain to University of Victoria students who will hear Governor Wallace today.

Mr. Audain, now a probation officer in Vancouver, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Audain, 333 King George Terrace.

He was in Mississippi in 1961 and rode in buses with the Freedom Riders as a protest against racialism. He served three weeks in jail for his activities. "The best policy is not to make a protest but to listen to what the governor has to say then ask probing questions about racist policy," Mr. Audain advised.

Saanich

Liquor Drive Begins

Attorney-General Bonner will have hundreds of thousands of Saanich residents to deal with—in addition to municipal council—on the question of a B.C. government liquor store for Saanich.

A 28-member committee of ratepayers headed by Mrs. Nora Lindsay yesterday started distributing 80 mimeographed acts of petitions calling on Mr. Bonner to take action in the establishment of a liquor store in the Town and Country shopping centre.

The 38-square-mile municipality, with a population of 54,000 hasn't a liquor store, and the nearest liquor stores are about 20 miles apart—on Johnson Street in Victoria and in the centre of Sidney, said Mrs. Lindsay.

LOTS OF BACKING

Saanich council has been waiting for some time to see Mr. Bonner about a liquor store, and with the campaign which was mounted yesterday it seems likely council will have plenty of backing by the time it gets down to Mr. Bonner's office.

Reeve Stanley Murphy said "There is a widespread demand for this service and we expect Mr. Bonner to recognize this."

"We are out to get 20,000 names. Saanich is the only municipality of any size in British Columbia which doesn't have a liquor store," said Mrs. Lindsay.

DELIVERIES MADE

Petitions were delivered to stores in the Town and Country shopping centre and to a number of service stations and grocery stores throughout the municipality, she said.

"We, the undersigned, believe that the people of Saanich are not being given fair consideration in this regard, and request the attorney-general act immediately," states part of the petition.

'Aides' Arrive Early

Guards for Governor

At least two "administrative aides"—described by RCMP as Alabama National Guardsmen—will accompany Alabama Governor George Wallace when he speaks at the University of Victoria today.

RCMP officers will also be present during the address, but an officer said they expect no trouble—"maybe a little heckling, that's all."

The two security guards are among 18 people in the governor's party, which includes Alabama newspapermen and state officials.

One member of the staff, who arrived yesterday in advance of the main party, said he and another man were "nothing unusual—just administrative aides."

However, police, students' council and faculty officials say they are National Guardsmen. Police say the men will not be armed.

The National Guard in peacetime are a form of army reserves under the command of a state-appointed official.

ROSETTA BOYLE

Oak Bay Asking For Centre Ideas

Oak Bay council has asked the public for ideas about the site and facilities of the proposed Oak Bay recreation centre.

Oak Bay Reeve Allan Cox said last night that council is anxious to receive as soon as possible written submissions from ratepayers and interested organizations concerning the "site and the type and extent of facilities for the proposed recreation centre which is to be put to a ratepayers' vote very soon."

He said, "Council hopes in this way to benefit from the views of all interested persons."

EASIER TO STUDY

Reeve Cox said the council would prefer the submissions to be written, because that makes them easier to study. He said the briefs or letters—there is no special form for them—should be addressed to the reeve and council, Oak Bay municipal hall.

Council is currently, and for the time being privately, studying the recreation centre proposal made last month by council's zoning and development planning committee.

"Copies of rough drawings and site plans prepared by the committee are posted in the lobby of the municipal hall," Reeve Cox said.

"These are not final plans and were prepared only to illustrate what facilities could be included in a certain area and how such a building would be sited."

"The cost of detailed plans will not be incurred unless a favorable ratepayers' vote is received."

Reeve Cox last night also announced that council intends to set up a special advisory committee, composed of representatives of interested community organizations and residents having special knowledge in the recreation field.

NOW IS THE TIME

Council has so far not had the benefit of expressions of opinion from the public, he said. "If the public is going to express any views, now is the time."

A recreation centre proposal is expected to go before the ratepayers of Oak Bay fairly early this year.

Lumber Mixup Solved

The mystery of the lumber export figures is solved.

A customs official told The Daily Colonist yesterday previously released figures for 1963 lumber exports from Victoria included the out-shipments of Sidney, Tule and Qualicum for nine months.

Corrected figure for 1963 is 307,726,530 board feet. The 1963 city figure is 239,855,970, an increase over the previous year of almost 11,000,000.

The official added that, while they do not show in export figures, more than 19,000,000 board feet of in-transit lumber from the U.S. was loaded at Victoria in 1963 for foreign consignees.

'An Honest Man And Good Man'

By HARVEY SHEPHERD

"The days of our years are threescore years and ten and if by reason of strength they be fourscore years, yet is their strength labor and sorrow; for it is soon cut off, and we fly away."

The remains of Byron Ingham (Boon) Johnson, 73, premier of British Columbia from 1947 to 1952, were cremated after funeral services at First United Church yesterday.

A crowd of some 300 people, among them dignitaries including Lieutenant-Governor Parkes, former Lieutenant-Governor Bennett and members of his cabinet, Mayor Wilson and prominent Liberals, gathered at the church to pay their last respects.

They heard Rev. R. J. D.

Morris tell of the day of death when "kings and queens, princes and presidents, premiers and statesmen," join as equals with the humblest people in presenting an account of their stewardship on earth to Almighty God.

What matters then, said Mr. Morris, is not what office a man has filled but with what integrity he has filled that office, not what "substance" he has acquired but what stewardship he did in his life.

FAITH IN GOD

He said that after discussion with Mr. Johnson's widow and with Byron Johnson Jr., he felt that the only thing appropriate for discussion now was what testimony the late Mr. Johnson's life bore to his faith in God.

Mr. Morris said Mr. Johnson's life was characterized by reverence, integrity and service.

He said that it does not matter that many disagreed with Mr. Johnson politically.

STAND UP

"What matters is that those who disagreed, as those who agreed, can stand up and say, 'He was a good man; he was an honest man.'"

He said the "paradox of death" is that the more a man is missed on earth, "the greater is the reality of triumph."

COUNCIL MATTER

Coun. Lamont felt this was a council matter and that council should take action on the solicitor's recommendation.

But Reeve Lee—and others agreed—said that his interpretation was that the solicitor was to act after reviewing the case.

TAKE ACTION

Councillor Albert Vikers finally submitted a motion that the solicitor should take action.

Councillor Lamont still wanted the solicitor to make a recommendation but council agreed with the motion.

Before the meeting Councillor Lamont was asked by a Colonist reporter just what action was being recommended and taken.

"I don't know," he said. "Nobody does."

service were O God Our Help in Ages Past and the 23rd Psalm.

Mr. Morris read from the 90th Psalm, which begins: "Lord, thou hast been our dwelling place in all generations. Before the mountains were brought forth, or ever thou hadst formed the earth and the world, even from everlasting thou art God. Thou turnest man to destruction; and sayest, Return, ye children of men."

NEW TESTAMENT

From the New Testament, he read from the 14th chapter of St. John, beginning:

"Let not your heart be troubled: ye believe in God, believe also in me. In my Father's house are many mansions: if it were not so I would have told you."

The remains were cremated at Royal Oak Cemetery.

Bridge Peels Log

A logging truck driver who forgot for a moment about the 13-foot-five-inch clearance at the railway bridge at the foot of Four Mile Hill on Highway 1-A gave incoming motorists a shock as the bridge peeled a huge log from the top of his head last night.

He told police he hadn't thought about the clearance and got quite a surprise when he heard a ripping sound and the log came unshipped.

A small piece of the log which was ripped off put a dent in an oncoming car. Fortunately for the oncoming car the log rolled into the ditch at the logging truck's side of the road.

Crashes Injure Five On Wet City Streets

Five people were treated for minor injuries in a series of car accidents on Greater Victoria's wet streets yesterday.

A three-car crash at Cook and Fort accounted for injuries to Mrs. Marjorie Middleton, 32, of 1364 Monterey and Chew Chung, 1344 Harrison during the 5 p.m. rush traffic.

Police said a car driven by Dean W. Tripp, 9891 Third Street, Sidney, skidded onto the wrong side of the road.

Scurrah In Hospital

Victoria's former Mayor Percy Scurrah, who underwent abdominal surgery Tuesday, was reported in good condition in Royal Jubilee Hospital last night.

Former members of the allied air services and their wives are invited to attend.

Multi-Nation Ethnos Lives Up to Her Name

By DON GAIN

A well-named ship is the Ethnos which docked at Ogden Point yesterday to pick up more than 2,000,000 board feet of lumber for U.S. East Coast ports.

Ethnologically speaking she's a Japanese-built ship with a Greek crew, registered in Monrovia, Liberia, and under charter to a Canadian company, Seaboard Shipping Co., Vancouver.

Nicholas Faros, the 30-year-old chief officer from Piraeus, Greece, said her full cargo this trip would total 7,767,000 board feet, most of it to be picked up in Vancouver.

This is only the second time the big ship, 508 feet long, has docked at Victoria. Built in Kobe in 1956, she is of Japanese design. Her deadweight tonnage is 16,000 tons. She has 10 automatic winches which speed loading and unloading.

When fully loaded she will sail for Tampa, Fla., later will discharge cargo at West Palm Beach and Port Everglades; Philadelphia and Camden, N.J. Her previous voyage took her to Yokohama from Mobile, Ala., with a cargo of soy beans. She came to B.C. from Japan.

The ship carries a 22-man crew and presently has one passenger, the chief engineer's wife.

Unless, of course, you count the three canaries.

These are in two cages in the captain's saloon. One of the cages bore the name Chifits.

Chief officer Faros said this is a special name for someone who does his job very well.

"Very good, it means," he said.

"Does it mean good luck?" I asked.

He looked a little puzzled, shrugged his shoulders.

"I've been two years on this ship," he said. "Nothing bad has happened."

Man in the Kitchen

Boiled Mutton
English Classic

By BASIL FITZGIBBON

The very thought of English cuisine terrifies some people. The misconception is that all English cooking is bad is a very sad matter—there are some wonderful recipes for puddings and pies that provide elegant and more than tasty dishes which cannot help but gratify the average palate. Rabbit pie, pigeon pie, game pie, steak and kidney pudding, to name a few well known items of English cuisine, are all quite deserving of a high place in any cook's list of interesting recipes, but boiled leg of mutton, mundane as it may sound, is one of the classic recipes that must not be overlooked.

BOILED LEG OF MUTTON

One leg of mutton, 6-8 lbs.; 1 onion (peeled and quartered); 1 carrot, sliced; 1 stalk celery (with leaves); 1 pepper-grain; 1 bay leaf; 1 teaspoon salt; boiling water; 1 medium-sized turnip (peeled and quartered).

Clean and trim the excess fat from the leg of mutton. Place the mutton in a large kettle, add the other ingredients, except the turnip, and add boiling water to cover.

Bring to the boil and cook for 10 minutes, remove the scum from the liquid, cover and allow to boil gently for 30 minutes to the pound. One hour before completion of cooking add the turnip. During the cooking remove the excess fat from the liquid.

Remove the leg of mutton when cooked and drain well—keep warm. Remove the turnip and mash, seasoning with butter, salt and pepper. Serve with the mutton in addition to good boiled potatoes.

Traditionally this dish is served with caper sauce and here is the recipe:

CAPER SAUCE

Two tablespoons of butter; 2 tablespoons of flour; 3 tablespoons of capers; salt; pepper; 2 cups of mutton broth.

In a heavy saucepan melt the butter, add the flour and mix well allowing the roux to cook for two or three minutes but do not allow to brown. Add the liquid and stir until creamy; if the sauce thickens too much add a little more broth. Add the capers and season with salt and pepper.

An alternative to the Caper Sauce is Dill Sauce. Prepare exactly as for Caper Sauce but replace the capers with fresh or dried dill.

Bon appetit!

Mexican Dishes
Are Hot

MEXICO CITY—The tortilla has been Mexico's bread for countless centuries. It often is rolled around delicious fillings made with beans, cheese, poultry, meat or vegetables—or a combination of these. It is Mexico's answer to the sandwich.

Delicious soups (called sopas) also are made from this paper-thin round cake, made from corn flour.

Tortillas when rolled around a filling of beef, pork, chicken or served with mole or tomato sauce they become enchiladas. Tortillas fried crisp in oil and covered with diced chicken meat or salad are called tostadas. They become quesadillas when made into turnovers and filled with fried beans, cheese or potatoes.

Chili, one of the most popular seasonings, should be used with restraint by the uninitiated. The best method to use in adding chili is to use about half of the amount called for in a recipe, then add and taste until the food reaches the right degree of hotness.

MEXICAN TORTILLA SOUP

Twenty tortillas; 2 large onions; 3 cloves of garlic; 2 large tomatoes; chicken broth; 1 chili (Pasoilla); ¼ lb. fresh cheese; sour cream.

Grind the garlic, onions and tomatoes in blender or put through a food chopper or press. Slice tortillas and fry in oil. Add the tomato, onion and garlic mixture along with the chicken broth. (Broth may be made with cubes of chicken extract and water.) Simmer half hour. Grate cheese and sprinkle on top. Top each bowl of soup with a spoonful of sour cream.

GUACAMOLE

Three avocados; 1 small onion; 1 clove garlic, optional; 2 green chilies.

Mash avocados. Mince the onion, garlic and green chilies. Combine all ingredients. Salt and pepper to taste.

BONORENSE BEEF

One lb. beef fillet cut in 1-inch cubes; 4 chopped green peppers; 1 chopped onion; 4 tomatoes (remove centres).

Put two frying pans on the fire with oil. When hot, put meat squares in one pan and brown. In the other, fry the pepper and onion until limp or tender. Cube the tomatoes and add with the onion and pepper to the meat and simmer over low heat for 15 to 20 minutes. Season to taste with salt and pepper. May be served with refried beans and pieces of fried tortilla.

Danuta Wales, woman skipper of the 7,237-ton Polish freighter Kopania Wujek, poses aboard the vessel at Leith, Scotland, with her husband who is the ship's second mate. Danuta, 32 and red haired, admitted commanding an all-male crew is none too easy. She said she took command five days ago after the captain became ill and had to be put ashore in England. She is normally the ship's first mate and says she is the only woman in Poland to hold a master's ticket. The new first mate, Walslaw Plawalski, said she makes a good skipper.—(AP Photofax)

Cranberry buns are a refreshing winter snack or dessert. The bright color and tangy flavor of a lightly spiced cranberry filling, swirling through a tender yeast dough, are pleasant touches at this season, when the tart fruit is in good supply. The buns freeze well, so you can store half a batch to have at breakfast or to tuck into lunch boxes a few weeks from now.

Bright Berries Lift
Winter Breads, Cakes

We're the losers if we relegate cranberries to the sole role of trimming for turkey and other fowl. Yet, we sometimes forget how they can perk up other parts of the menu at this season. The colorful, tart berries are in excellent supply and good condition during the winter months and their cheery color and bright flavor give an immeasurable lift to desserts such as puddings, cakes and, even sweet yeast-raised breads.

A tender, slightly sweet dough encases an elusively spiced cranberry filling. Cinnamon is the spice; it complements the tart taste of the fruit without overwhelming it. The dough is rolled up around the filling, jelly-roll style, then cut into 18 pinwheels. The buns are baked, nine per round pan, so that the finished product is like two large plaques.

Cranberry buns keep several weeks if sealed tightly in plastic film or foil, then stored in the freezer.

Today's cranberry buns are a case in point. They're nice for dessert or snack time, and would be a welcome surprise for lunch box toppers.

CRANBERRY BUNS

(Yield: makes 12.)
½ cup milk; ¼ cup granulated sugar; 1¼ teaspoons salt; ¼ cup margarine or butter; ¼ cup lukewarm water; 2 teaspoons granulated sugar; 2 envelopes fast-rising active dry yeast; 2 eggs, well beaten; 3¼ cups (about) pre-sifted all-purpose flour; soft margarine or butter; cranberry filling; confectioners' icing.

Scald milk; stir in ¼ cup sugar, salt and ¼ cup margarine or butter. Cool to lukewarm.

Meantime, measure lukewarm water into large mixing bowl.

Stir in 2 teaspoons sugar. Sprinkle yeast on top. Let stand 10 minutes, then stir well. Stir in lukewarm milk mixture, eggs and 2 cups of the flour. Beat until smooth. Work in enough additional flour, about 1½ cups, to form a soft dough.

Turn out on lightly floured board or canvas. Knead until smooth and elastic. Place in lightly greased bowl. Grease top with soft margarine or butter. Cover; let rise in a warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about one hour.

Punch down dough. Turn out on lightly floured board or canvas. Divide dough in half. Roll out one-half of dough into 12x12-inch rectangle. Spread with half of cranberry filling. Starting at short edge, roll up like jelly roll. Pinch to seal long outer edge. Cut into nine equal pieces.

Place, cut side up, in greased nine-inch layer cake pan. Repeat with other half of dough.

Cover. Let rise in a warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 45 minutes. Bake in preheated moderate oven, 350 degrees Fahrenheit, about 25 to 30 minutes. Remove to cooling racks. Frost while still warm with confectioners' icing.

Cranberry Filling: Grind or put through food blender 2 cups raw cranberries (half a one-pound box). Blend in ¼ cup granulated sugar and 2 teaspoons cinnamon. Bring to boil, then simmer five minutes, stirring frequently, until thickened. Cool to room temperature.

Confectioners' Icing: Combine 2 cups sifted icing sugar and a few grains of salt. Stir in ½ teaspoon vanilla and enough milk or cream (2 to 3 tablespoons) to make a stiff paste.

Spread over warm cranberry buns, letting glass drizzle down sides.

Salmon Triangles
Substantial Snack

Sandwich lovers of every age give high rating to the grilled variety. Crisp and crunchy, such hearty, hot sandwiches are just as popular in summer as in winter. Hot Swiss salmon triangles are practically double-deckers; the filling nestles between slices of mild, nut-sweet process Swiss cheese that melts to a soft, almost runny consistency as the heat penetrates and browns the outer bread slices. Celery salt and vinegar are small touches that accent the richly flavored salmon filling. Accompanied by pickles they make a substantial snack; with a tossed salad and garden-fresh tomatoes, hot Swiss salmon triangles will be well received as a supper or luncheon feature—particularly by the men in the family.

HOT SWISS SALMON TRIANGLES

One cup (1 can approx. ½ lb.) canned salmon, drained and flaked; ¼ teaspoon celery salt; pinch of pepper; 1 teaspoon vinegar or lemon juice; ½ cup soft butter; 8 slices white bread; 8 slices packaged process Swiss cheese.

Mash salmon with a fork; blend in celery salt, pepper and vinegar.

Spread about 3 tablespoons of the butter on one side of each of the bread slices. On each of four of these, place a Swiss cheese slice. Spread about ¼ of the salmon mixture on top of the cheese. Cover salmon with an other slice of cheese. Top with remaining bread slices, buttered side down. Cut each of the four sandwiches diagonally in half. Melt remaining butter in a large heavy frying pan. When hot, but

A special service, written by a different country each year, will be conducted simultaneously in many languages but the theme will be the same—"Let Us Pray."

Their son George was killed in the Battle of Britain in 1940. The couple has a daughter, Mrs. C. E. (Phyllis) Cooley of Victoria.

Stenos Claim

Walls Dirty, Depressing

OTTAWA (CP) — Add this boiling issue to the load of paperwork in the capital:

The public works department doesn't like the way the stenographers in the Industrial division of the northern affairs department redecorated their walls.

Amateurism . . . certainly have to be redone . . . this cannot happen again," said an official reproach, adding darkly that it is so serious that headquarters has been told and another thunderbolt probably will fall from more senior levels.

The public works department is the repair, maintenance and painting agency for most federal property.

The stenographers changed the walls of their working area from a nondescript grey to a two-tone job — yellow and brown.

Northern affairs sent back this note:

The redecorating was paid for out of nickels and dimes collected by the stenographers and the atmosphere has been changed from "dirty, depressing, sordid and unkempt" to an exceedingly pleasant room. A professional painter was hired for the job.

Moreover, surely works department investigation had revealed that two senior officials had redecorated their own rooms at their own time and expense? What about that?

"We make no apology for the work," said the northern affairs response. "In fact we think it is a warming story of a kind that would have wide interest for the taxpaying public." A public works reply now is awaited.

OTTAWA (CP)—"When I'm out hunting, I don't see a deer. I just see a nice juicy steak coming toward me," says One-Shot Susie Hicks, a great-grandmother whose favorite pastime is bagging moose.

More formally known as Mrs. Lloyd Hicks of Ottawa, she earned her nickname from fellow hunters as a tribute to her deadly accuracy, gained from 25 years of hunting experience.

"My husband taught me everything I know, and it worked out very well. As a matter of fact, I'm as good a shot as he is now."

A down-to-earth woman who loves life in the great outdoors, Mrs. Hicks first hoisted a gun when she was 12. Lloyd Hicks, who grew up only a few miles from her home near Picton, Ont., dared her to try her hand with an ancient Zulu gun from the Boer War.

"It almost knocked me flat but I did it."

Since then Mrs. Hicks has acquired a more sophisticated taste in guns. She owns two rifles and a shotgun with specially made stocks because her arms are short.

She goes after moose or bear with a .30-06 Winchester, stalks deer with a .257 Roberts and keeps a .22 Remington ("my vermin gun") handy for groundhogs or crows.

Mrs. Hicks' best for roughing it in the bush lies the fact she has four children, nine grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Lloyd Hicks holds rifle she used to bag an 1,800-pound bull moose last year near Hearst, Ont.—(CP Photo)

She believes hunting is good for her health, but regrets that "Canadian clothing manufacturers don't cater to women hunters yet." She dresses warmly in men's hunting clothes and has to wear boys' boots because she can't find a man's boot small enough.

When her children were small she kept her eye in by doing lots of target shooting, later switching to hunting duck and partridge.

Now the Hicks enjoy hunting moose and deer at their camp north of Madoc, Ont. They spent two weeks there last fall, often shooting in company of their two sons.

In 1962 Mr. and Mrs. Hicks went on a five-day moose hunt along the Nagagami River, 70 miles west of Hearst, Ont. They spotted "the biggest bull we had ever laid eyes on," 1,800 pounds and with a 57-inch antler rack, they discovered later. One shot from One-Shot Susie sent it crashing to the ground, but five men were needed to drag it out.

Another highlight of Mrs. Hicks' hunting career occurred during that same trip. While canoeing with their French-Canadian guide they spotted a 1,300-pound bull moose.

"After you," Mrs. Hicks indicated to her husband. But when his first shot only wounded the animal, she took aim and fired. It was another prize for the lady of the party.

Mrs. Hicks sees nothing strange in the companionship she and her husband find in hunting together. While many a man forsakes his wife for "a few days of hunting with the boys," Mr. Hicks has always been glad to have his wife along.

Her advice to women just starting to learn to shoot: "Start with a small calibre gun like a .22 and work up to something with a greater recoil. It's really simple when you get the hang of it."

Ann

Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Some friends of ours have a retarded son. The boy is 10 years old, but his mentality is at the four-or-five-year-old level. He is usually pleasant and well-behaved, but it is apparent that the child is mentally deficient.

The problem is the boy's 16-year-old sister. She is ashamed of her brother and fearful that if her friends see him it will hurt her socially. She insists that the boy be in his room when she comes home from school — in case she brings a friend. When she has a date the retarded child must be kept out of sight.

The parents want to be fair to the girl, but they want to be fair to the boy, too. They don't know what to do. Can you help?—NEWARK.

Dear Newark: The attitude of the 16-year-old girl is a sorry reflection of ignorant parents. The daughter should have been taught years ago that her brother needs love and kindness. To treat the little fellow as something to be hidden is shameful.

The parents, as well as the daughter, need educating.

Dear Ann Landers: I have been married 12 years and we have four lovely children. My husband causes me more aggravation than all the kids put together. My biggest complaint with him is that I never know when he will be home for supper.

I used to phone him at work every day at 4:15 but the fellows at the plant needed him about the calls and nicknamed him "Mr. Home-Phone-4:15" so he ordered me to cut it out. He refuses to call me for fear someone will hear him.

He could be home easily by 6 o'clock if he wanted to, but more often than not he stops at a tavern and has a drink—or three or four—with the boys.

The kids like to eat with their dad so sometimes we wait as late as 8 o'clock. By then the kids are starved and it keeps me in the kitchen till 10 o'clock. Is there a solution?—24-HOUR CHEF.

Dear Chef: Reach a simple understanding with your man. If he's not home by 6:30 have dinner without him?—

Any man who'd rather booze it up in a tavern than have dinner with his family has no right to complain about a cold dinner—alone.

Dear Ann Landers: The letter from "Concerned Family" made me furious. So they don't want their well-heeled, socially prominent mother, age 54, to marry a department store clerk because it might damage her in the eyes of her friends? If she listens to them she is out of her mind.

I'm a widow, just about her age. I have my own city apartment and country place, a car and everything money can buy. But money can't buy the things I really want.

My children are happily married so I leave them alone which is as it should be. I try to keep busy but I miss the male companionship I enjoyed for 30 years.

I hope this woman ignores her selfish, snobbish family and marries the department store clerk. And if he has a friend, I'd like to meet him.—SICK OF SOLITAIRE

Dear SOS: Sorry, I can't check out the friend angle for you, but your letter is a good one, and I hope for the widow's sake, that she follows her heart.

Lecturer Missed Parasols

Miss Winifred Bracher, lecturer in textiles at the University of British Columbia, in her address to the Victoria Home Economics and Dietetic Association, spoke on her experiences as one of 16 American and Canadian women who went on a special tour of the Orient.

The tour, arranged for clothing and textile specialists, was organized by Miss Oona Umbel of the University of Hawaii who is an authority on historic costume.

Prior to starting the tour Miss Bracher said the members took part in an orientation week at the University of Hawaii where they heard lectures by sociologists and anthropologists on each country to be visited. During the evenings they enjoyed a program of music and dancing native to the different countries. Textiles and costumes of each country, drawn from Miss Umbel's collection or from the museum in Honolulu, were also studied.

The speaker illustrated her talk with colored slides of Japan, Formosa, Okinawa and the Philippines. She also showed some of the exquisite fabrics she brought back with her including colorful Thai silks, fabrics made from peanuts, banana and coconut fibres. She pointed out these fabrics are becoming rare with the trend toward man-made fibres and cotton.

Miss Bracher, surprised to find the Orient so westernized, said she missed the old silk parasols which she remembers seeing in Vancouver as a child.

In charge of the business session of the meeting was Mrs. Clarke Horning, now president of the Association. Other newly-appointed officers are Mrs. John Clay, scholarship convener, and Mrs. H. J. Swartz, hospitality.

Tory Plan

Price-Fix 'Out' In U.K.

LONDON (UPI)—The government, faced with an uphill battle against the Labor party in the coming general elections, announced plans Wednesday to abolish price-fixing arrangements on a wide range of products.

There were reports some members of the cabinet opposed the move. There were indications also of opposition among rank-and-file Conservative MPs.

CURRENT SESSION

Minister for Trade and Industry Edward Heath told the Commons that legislation to end retail price maintenance will be introduced during the current session of Parliament. Manufacturers now are allowed to keep shopkeepers from cutting prices on certain brand name goods, including electrical appliances, automobiles and chocolate.

Informed sources said Minister for Science Quintin Hogg and Foreign Secretary R. A. Butler were among the cabinet opponents.

'INCOMPATIBLE'

Chancellor of the Exchequer Reginald Maudling backed the plan.

Heath told the Commons the concept of retail price maintenance was "in general incompatible" with the government's aim of encouraging competition and keeping down costs.

"Effective legislative measures in this field are essential if the nation is to enjoy the benefits of a high rate of economic growth and stable prices."

Food Stall Needs Produce

Fruit and other produce items are needed urgently for the surplus food stall Saturday. "Response has fallen off since the Christmas period but still have 225 families on my list and we still need produce," said organizer Mrs. E. E. Harper.

Doors of the surplus food stall, 732-A Cormorant Street, will open at 11 a.m. Saturday. Anyone wishing to donate food should call Mrs. Harper at GR 4-1750 for pickup service.

Queen's Visit Expected In October

OTTAWA (CP) — The Queen now is expected to visit Charlottetown and Quebec City during the second week in October, sources said Wednesday.

Official announcement of the Queen's travel plans probably will be made after delivery of her fourth child, expected in late February or early March. Ottawa officials had hoped earlier that the Queen would visit Charlottetown on Sept. 1 to mark the 100th anniversary of the opening of the Charlottetown Conference which led to Confederation in 1867.

It was thought that she would visit Quebec City a few days after that.

Reliable informants however, now say the Queen's tentative plan is to arrive in Charlottetown about Oct. 7 and to be in Quebec City on Oct. 16, the 100th anniversary of the opening session of the Quebec Conference.

Dear Sir:

When I read your advertisement, I rushed right out to buy some Low Cost Garden Fresh Bird Bath Water and have been using it faithfully every since. Each morning, immediately after rising, I massage my scalp thoroughly, using plenty of the water, and follow with a brisk rub with your Health Frozen SOS Pads, using a new pad on each occasion.

While my hair has not been restored by this treatment, my scalp has turned a beautiful red color (everyone notices it) and it shows some promise of producing a fine crop of pin feathers.

Since I am soon planning a trip abroad, and would like to take some of your Bird Bath Water with me, I am wondering if you plan to market the dehydrated product? It would be so convenient for travellers and tourists.

Thank you for your advertisement. My whole life has been changed.

Yours truly,

Sons Dig In—Perhaps for Years

By JOHN GREEN

AGASSIZ—A collection of shacks on the fringe of a gravel pit has become home for 500 nomadic Doukhobors and neither gale nor blizzard nor deluge will dislodge them.

Their strange and stubborn vigil outside the fences of Mountain Prison, where several score of their kinsmen are jailed on terrorist charges, could go on for 10 years.

Fasting in prison and camp has stopped. The campers are no longer pressing for any particular action by the government, although they would still like an inquiry into the means by which the men in the prison were convicted, and, of course, they wait their release.

Aside from the wholesale flouting of building and sanitation laws represented by the camp itself, the group has established a record of scrupulous respect for the law.

Far from being explosive, the situation has settled down to the point where it is hard to see when, or how it will ever change. Some prisoners have more than 10 years to go before their sentences are up. There is nothing to indicate that the campers can not and will not stay right where they are until all their kinsmen are free.

They have little money, but the way they are living involves little expense, and the longer they stay the more jobs they are likely to find. It is hard for outsiders to imagine how they can find any satisfaction in just squatting outside the prison day after day, but as long as that is what they want to do with their lives there is nothing to stop them from doing it.

Some of the implications of a long stay are rather disquieting to the municipal authorities. Next year, under B.C. law, adult Doukhobors will be qualified to vote in municipal elections. There are probably more of them than the 250 votes which elected the reeve last December.

If she acquires a bit of property before next September, Big Fanny Smagoff, the Doukhobors' spokeswoman, would be eligible to be reeve in 1965.

Then there is the matter of the 1966 census. If the Doukhobors aren't gone by then, they'll push the population of Kent municipality over the 2,500 mark, and the local ratepayers will become responsible for a share of police and social welfare costs—from which they are now exempt. If, in the meantime, the Doukhobors have been accepted on the social welfare rolls, the cost could be staggering.

At present, the sect members get no welfare payments as such; the authorities contend that they are on the move and not properly settled anywhere. However, they get food vouchers from the Salvation Army, and the provincial government picks up the tab.

Shacks Home for Sect Nomads

Recently a Mountie gave a newcomer at the camp a dressing down for erecting a wooden building without a permit. The Doukhobors meekly went to the municipal police office and asked for one—a request that couldn't possibly be granted since the structure was illegal on several counts. The embarrassed policeman, who hadn't thought for a moment that the Doukhobors would pay any attention, had to send unofficial word back to the camp that it was all a mistake. Meanwhile, the Doukhobors, carrying the sect's present law-abiding policy to the limit, had already taken his house down.

He has since rebuilt it in a less conspicuous position and the sect as a whole has constructed a wood and plastic "community hall" with the police carefully looking the other way.

New houses go up from time to time. The man who took his house down for the policeman had not been with the trek since before it came

Barbers Meet Snag In Hours Dispute

Victoria Barbers' Union has run into a snag in its announced program of obtaining changes in legislation at the 1964 House session to permit each barber to choose his own day of closing.

G. A. Neely, solicitor for the union, said it was impossible for it to obtain the required amendment to the Municipal Act because of the shortness of time.

But he suggested the city could achieve the same result by seeking a change in the Municipalities Enabling and Validating Act, which would permit Victoria to drop its mandatory Wednesday closing

Department of Universities

TORONTO (CP)—Premier Robert Harris predicted a lively session as the Ontario legislature opened Wednesday with an announcement by the government that it is establishing a department of university affairs.

The throne speech, read by Lieutenant-Governor Earl Rowe before CBC television cameras, made little reference to upcoming major legislation but announced a reorganization of government including the establishment of two new departments.

Besides the university affairs department to maintain liaison with the province's institutions of higher learning, the speech said the government will establish a department of energy and resources management.

This department would encompass the existing energy department plus a conservation branch of the department of lands and forests. The present energy minister is John Simmonett, who took over the portfolio a short time ago from Economics Minister Stanley Rand.

The creation of the two departments should mean the appointment of at least one new cabinet minister for university affairs, although this was not spelled out by the government-written speech from the throne.

Parquhar Oliver, the Liberal House leader, said the throne speech disclosed little of the government's legislative intentions. He said its import was "obscured in a cluster of words."

Donald C. MacDonald, leader of the New Democrats, said the speech displayed "obvious inadequacies and skilful glossing over weaknesses in major areas of concern."

Prophet And Loss

VANCOUVER (CP) — Former prime minister John Diefenbaker regaled 400 service club members Tuesday with stories of Nkrumah and the fortune teller, and Churchill and the teetotaler.

When he met Prime Minister Nkrumah of Ghana at the 1957 prime ministers' conference in London, "Nkrumah asked me if I believed in necromancers and fortune tellers, and said he had success with one. She told him he'd become Ghana's first premier and marry an Egyptian. These came true."

FOURTH PROPHECY

But the success of the prophecies made Nkrumah worried about the fourth prophecy — he would be assassinated.

"That's what I was interested when I read Nkrumah had looked up the leader of the opposition."

During a private London luncheon, Sir Winston Churchill, reached under the table, brought up a bottle and offered a drink.

NEVER TAKE IT

"I never take it," said Mr. Diefenbaker.

"What?" said Churchill. "Are you a prohibitionist?"

"No, a teetotaler."

"You mean," said Churchill, "that you are a teetotaler and not a prohibitionist?"

"Yes."

40 Daily Colonist Victoria, B.C., Thurs., Jan. 16, 1964

John D Advice:

Fight Whigs Not Tories

VANCOUVER (CP) — John Diefenbaker, in a partisan speech to 700 party supporters, urged Tuesday night that "we start fighting Whigs rather than Tories."

He said a Progressive Conservative government can be restored in Ottawa only if the party "can catch a vision, build unity and a common dedication."

SET THE STAGE

Mr. Diefenbaker referred to the Conservative national meeting next month in Ottawa as a place to set the stage. He left out any direct reference to the question of a vote on his leadership, but he said he has "hundreds" of helpful suggestions on the party's future and Conservatives must be united in pursuing them.

"We must be careful we don't let the Liberals determine our course," he told the rally.

TORN APART

If a Conservative government were still in office, he said, "confederation wouldn't be torn apart as it is under this administration."

He accused the Liberal government of following "the old principle of divide and rule" in its dealings with the provinces. The government had found its first budget "no good" and reduced it section by section, he said.

"Usually when a budget is no good you remove the minister. In this case they removed the budget and kept the minister."

It was a time for further tax incentives and removal of Liberal-instituted sales taxes. Liberal pledges of economies in administration were hardly borne out by increasing the salaries of MPs to $18,000 and by "doubling the salary of the president of the CBC."

New Treaty Panama Gets Tougher

PANAMA CITY (UPI)—President Roberto Chiari told a mass demonstration of Panamanian students last night that Panama would not resume diplomatic relations with the United States until he receives assurances that negotiations will be held for a new treaty governing the Canal Zone.

Opinion

America Takes Beating

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The United States is "taking a beating" on the world opinion front over the Panama situation, the U.S. Information Agency has conceded.

The agency said, in a report on a survey of initial press and official reaction to the violent incidents, that the United States is being strongly criticized in many parts of both Latin America and Western Europe.

SUPPORT FOR PANAMA
In Latin America, USIA said, there is "a general expression of support for Panama's position." It added: "The United States has been generally criticized, the degree

Treat All, Demand Corsicans

BASTIA, Corsica (Reuters)—Some 5,000 Corsicans demonstrated here Wednesday night for the immediate treatment of all leukaemia victims on this island with a French healer's serum.

The marchers were led through the streets by the father of a four-year-old French boy who arrived here for treatment last week.

Civil Defence Measures Urged

Russians Uneasy?

MOSCOW (UPI)—Marshal Vasily Chulikov, in an unprecedented article published Wednesday, called for widespread instruction of the Soviet civilian population in defence measures against nuclear, chemical or bacteriological attack.

The commander of Soviet land forces, writing in the journal, Military Knowledge, urged creation of "special shelters" to protect citizens against radiation, instruction on protecting the exposed part of the body and respiration.

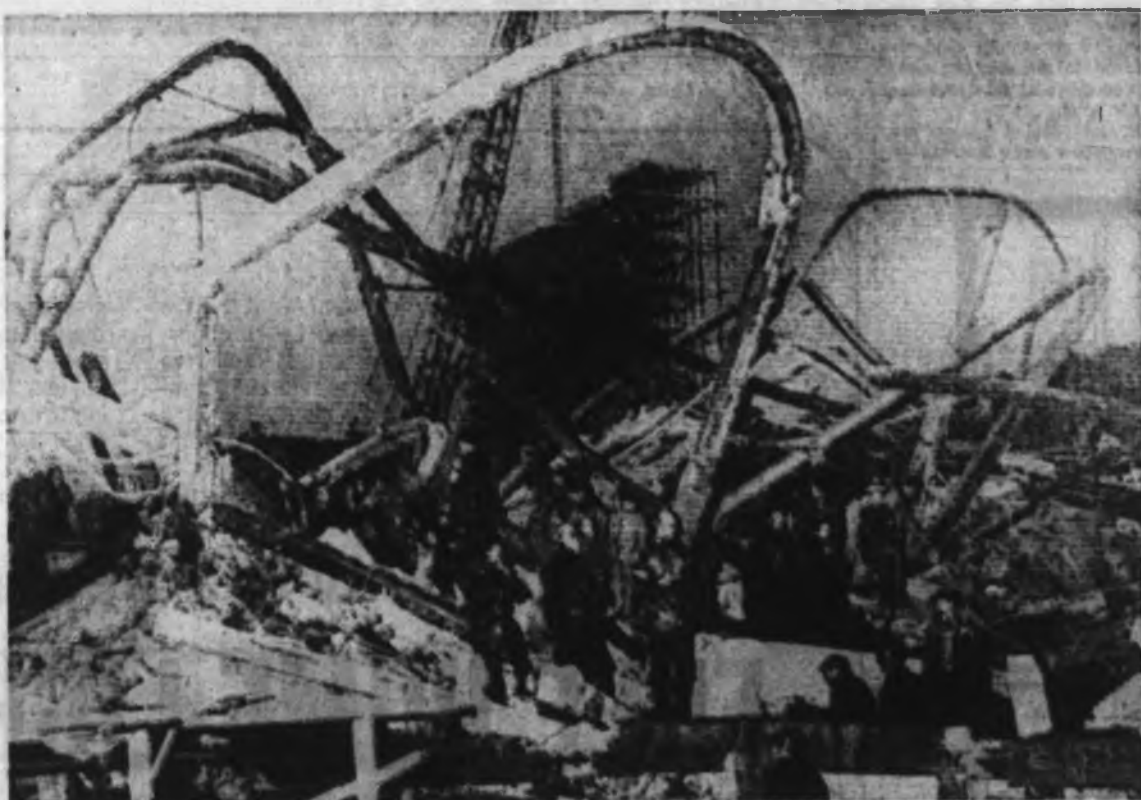

He also urged provisions to protect animals, food, and water and said rescue work should be organized to minister to the wounded following an all-out attack.

Chulikov's article was the first by a prominent military man and an indication that the Soviet Union has not organized widespread protective measures.

This disclosure apparently contradicted accounts published abroad which claimed that Soviet measures to protect the population were more advanced than in the United States and elsewhere.

Premier Khrushchev has suggested that an all-out attack would wipe out "millions upon millions."

Firemen probe wreckage for victims in Paris building collapse.

25 BURIED IN RUINS

PARIS (AP)—The 12-storey steel and concrete skeleton of an apartment house collapsed Wednesday killing at least 15 workmen.

Another 18 workmen were injured, and rescuers dug frantically toward the weak cries of men buried under the estimated 100,000 tons of debris. Two of the injured were freed with hacksaws and chisels. About 10 men still were missing.

FILE OF RUINS

Police and army engineers moved into the 20- by 50-yard pile of ruins with mobile cranes as firemen poked through the beams and slabs with listening devices.

Workmen were swinging the last beams of the roof into place when the structure swayed with a roar similar to that of a jet airplane, witnesses said.

LAST BEAM

The crew planned to celebrate the completion of the structural work Wednesday night after the last prefabricated concrete and steel beam was in place.

The building, financed by the government as moderate-rent public housing, was one of several in an 800-apartment urban renewal project.

Seven Alive In Mine

CASTRO BAUXEL, West Germany (Reuters)—Rescuers digging toward seven miners trapped by a roof fall 200 feet underground in a coal mine here expect to reach them by Friday night, a mine spokesman said Wednesday night.

The men were being supplied with food through a natural fissure.

Shaky Case

Loggers Get Liquor

VANCOUVER (CP)—City police were advised Wednesday that they seized $1,300 of liquor on "extremely shaky" ground. So they took it back.

And a cheer went up at the hotel where the province's truck loggers are holding a convention.

UNLOADING

Detectives seized the hard liquor and beer Tuesday as it was being unloaded at the hotel, bound for 15 hospitality rooms operated by companies taking part in the convention.

Deputy Chief Gordon Ambrose said the seizure followed a complaint by a liquor vendor under a section of the Liquor Control Act.

NO AGENTS

This reads that no person shall canvass for, solicit, receive or take orders for purchase or sale of liquor, or act as agent for purchase or sale of liquor.

A spokesman for the police dry squad said:

"The section appears clear. But the city prosecutor's office advised us that there were cases in the past which would indicate our case—with the evidence we have—would be extremely shaky."

WOULDN'T WIN

"We were advised we wouldn't be successful in a prosecution."

Deputy Ambrose hinted that the vendor's allegations might have been borne out "if the liquor had reached a further stage on its distribution."

Pearson, de Gaulle Discuss Cold War

PARIS (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson and President de Gaulle exchanged frank assessments of East-West relations Wednesday and dealt with matters directly affecting their two countries.

In a conference extended at de Gaulle's request beyond the scheduled one hour, the two leaders discussed the cold war thaw from the standpoint of future East-West relations.

It is understood they also explored ways to improve economic and cultural contacts between Canada and France, possibly aiming at consultative machinery similar to the periodic Canada-United States cabinet conference.

In discussion of cultural relations, student exchanges were high on the list.

Johnson, Segni Partners

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson and Italian President Antonio Segni ended two days of talks with a call Wednesday for a United Europe linked with the United States in an Atlantic partnership.

In a joint communique they said political and military talks on establishing an Atlantic alliance nuclear missile fleet are proceeding satisfactorily.

Segni also emphasized the need for an Atlantic partnership and a politically united Europe in an address to a joint session of Congress.

Western Moves Mapped

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Douglas-Home and visiting Chancellor Erhard set out Wednesday to cement British-West German partnership amid reports of new Western moves to halt the world arms race.

Douglas-Home and the West German leader, together for a two-day parley, were taking a long, cool look at prospects of disarmament as part of a broader survey of East-West relations.

Indonesia Threat Greets Kennedy

TOKYO (AP)—Indonesia took a defiant stance Wednesday as Robert F. Kennedy, U.S. attorney general, headed for Tokyo to meet with Indonesian President Sukarno on the Malaysian crisis.

Foreign Minister Subandrio of Indonesia warned that any economic action against his country might bring a complete change in its policy of non-alignment—presumably meaning a swing to the Communist bloc.

Subandrio's statement referred to economic measures he accused the British of taking against Indonesia. But it also would apply to reports that Indonesia risks loss of U.S. aid unless it calls off its campaign to wreck the British-sponsored federation of Malaysia.

Referring to a decision by the British government in Hong Kong to halt licences for the export of certain strategic goods to Indonesia, Subandrio said:

"If this measure proves to be the beginning of a general offensive, we will have to make an over-all review of the whole situation after President Sukarno returns home from his tour."

Subandrio then noted that the British action "can completely change the foundation of Indonesia's foreign policy, which to date has consistently

Arab Leaders United For Anti-Israel Force

CAIRO (AP)—Arab world rulers agreed Wednesday night on the essentials of a "positive solution" aimed at halting the Israeli water project and decided to set up a joint military command with permanent headquarters.

The leaders of 100,000,000 Arabs were in unanimous agreement on basic points of the plan, aimed at thwarting

the impending Israeli diversion of Jordan River waters but their foreign ministers meet today to put the resolution in final form, a spokesman said.

Kings, sheiks, presidents and strongmen of 13 countries agreed their anti-Israel posture required a military command with "administrative and financial possibilities as well as a permanent headquarters, and

Time for Topsoil

By M. V. CHESNUT, F.R.S.E.

If any of my readers can manage to get their hands on a load of really good, humus topsoil, it can certainly be put to good use about now. All of the herbaceous perennials appreciate a generous topdressing of fresh soil over their roots and will often develop a whole new set of vigorous young feeding roots in the layer of new soil. With this improved root system, the plant's performance will be just that much better next summer.

The same soil, ideally with some well rotted leaves mixed in, can be spread to a depth of three inches over a patch of lily-of-the-valley and will do wonders for these shy bloomers.

Strawberry plants have a tendency to work themselves up out of the ground and can do with a few barrow loads of rich soil spread between the rows. This is much better than pulling up the existing soil around the crowns with the draw hoe, for the removal of the between-rows soil can expose the delicate root tips.

Another place where a supply of first grade topsoil can be put to good use is in the rock garden. Soil will often tend to wash down from the higher levels to the lower pockets as a result of persistent winter rain, and many of the plants in the upper pockets will be in need of a topdressing to cover the exposed roots.

Moving soil from one part of the garden to another can be a beast of a job at this season of the year. I refuse utterly to touch a wheelbarrow when the ground is muddy, for the mud picks up on the wheel and gets spread all over the gravel and cinder paths. On clay soil in particular, it is bad business even to walk on it in wet weather, much less push a loaded barrow over it, for such compacted soil will dry out and harden into a brick-like texture in the spring.

The trick here is to reserve the wheeling of soil, manure, rocks and such loads for frosty weather when there is a sufficient crust of frost in the soil to sustain the weight of the barrow. Better not wheel any loads across a frost-free lawn, though, for this is very bad for the grass. Put down boards wherever grass must be crossed.

I think that most gardeners nowadays know all about the value of soil in the garden—how it acts as a mild fertilizer and as a bug repellent in the soil. It isn't so generally realized, however, that coal dust can be a mighty useful too.

Folks who burn coal can use the dust and slack on lilies, delphiniums and similar plants, as even a light dusting over the surface helps enormously to keep those voracious slugs at bay. The old-fashioned tiger lilies in particular are early risers and it won't be very long now before they will be poking their noses out. These first shoots to appear always take quite a beating from slugs if no protection is given.

Coal slack sifted through a half-inch sieve does a grand job too on heavy, sticky soil. Such clayey soil has a nasty habit of caking and forming a crust as it dries out, and a layer of coal dust on the surface will prevent this unhealthy condition. The dust will also provide an area of good drainage in the region of the stem bases, where out plants are most vulnerable to rot infections.

Pipemanship

By CHARLES McDOWELL

By FRANK TUMpane

After reading the latest communique about the perils of cigarette smoking, I dug deep into the recesses of a drawer and fished out my pipes, one of which I am puffing right now...

By WESLEY HICKS

Well, that does it, I guess. I'm going to stop smoking cigarettes. When I finish this, I'll stub my last cigarette. It may be the first of a long succession of last cigarettes, but I'm going to try to make the stubbing a final ritual... There goes my last cigarette. It's out and the smoke has faded. This is my own private project, putting it out and, I hope, extinguishing a habit with it... I'm going back to a pipe.

You will need more than one pipe. Buy one to smoke and several to scatter around your home and office and in your raincoat pockets. Here the beginner has an advantage over the veteran. The beginner can acquire cheap pipes not to smoke rather than not smoking expensive and exotic ones.

In choosing a tobacco, go for an off-brand and smear by it. Better yet, buy three off-brands, mix them, and refuse to divulge the brands.

Keep your basic supply of tobacco in a can, which also should contain half of a very old potato or a piece of orange peel. These things do something about the humidity. If you use potato, quarrel a little with those who use orange peel, and vice versa.

If your wife gives you a humidifier, keep golf balls in it.

Carry a portable supply of tobacco in a pouch on your person. Always carry it in the same pocket but always pat all the other pockets in a preoccupied way before you find it.

Use the roll-type pouch. Learn to unroll it with a flourish to punctuate dramatic passages in your conversation, or to distract others who are talking pompously.

When dipping your pipe into and roll them slightly, as if you were dipping into a dark barrel and might come up with an eel. Proper pipe-dipping will rivet the attention of a whole roomful of people on the pipe-dipper.

In packing the pipe, strive to develop a motion with the thumb that has a vaguely mystical quality. When you hit on it, you will know.

Light the pipe with a kitchen match, a stick of wood from the fire, a small flame-thrower, anything so long as you make a ritual of it. In the first phase of combustion, puff swiftly and gently, with great concentra-

When the pipe goes out, which will be soon in most cases, knock out the ash and unburned tobacco on some resonant surface. Be brisk and loud. Emulate the woodpecker.

Now, tend the pipe. Use a small tool of some kind to scrape it and poke it for a while. Take it apart. Gaze at the grain of the pipe. Blow through the stem smartly, like a boatswain. Say something about dottle. Poke at it some more. Reload it if you must.

A pipe requires a lot of tending, and that is really the point of having a pipe anyway. Remember, when you are tending a pipe you don't have to smoke it.

Newmans Not Parting

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—Joanne Woodward called to thank me for going out on a limb. "Where do these rumors start?" Joanne asked me. I had no sooner put the phone down, when a chum called with a scoop: "The Newmans are separating." "Not true," I told her. The rumors will start up again when Joanne leaves for New York ahead of Paul, "to get some furniture for our new apartment in New York." Early in February the Newmans start rehearsals in New York for their play, Baby Wanna Kiss. They have signed to appear with the play for four months. "Then," Joanne told me, "we will spend several months in our Westport home." It certainly doesn't sound like a marriage break-up, does it?

Donna Day says he will be remaining with the Jack Benny show through the switch to NBC... and James Garner is spending some of his big movie money, financing TV pilots... and if they tied all the unused TV pilots in Hollywood from end to end, they would encircle the globe many times.

Sophia Loren is a vibrant girl who puts everything she has into her acting. And she put a great deal into those love scenes with Stephen Boyd in The Fall of the Roman Empire. Remember this when you see the film—with Sophia it is acting, not love-making. "True," sighs Mr. Boyd.

George Hamilton was discussing the realism of today. "I'm all for it but there's nothing wrong with escapism if you know what you're escaping from."... They had thought of putting Audrey Hepburn into a bathtub scene for My Fair Lady but decided she was too thin.

A pity Charles Laughton is not around to read the glowing accounts and awards won by his protegee, Albert Finney for Tom Jones and Luther. Charles discovered Finney acting in the British provinces, took him to London and gave him a role in his play. And introduced him to professional Shakespeare at Stratford-on-Avon.

It was merely a question of time before they signed Zero Mostel to play Hercules Poirot for the screen. I had thought Agatha Christie's detective with the famed mustaches was a bit thinner than Zero but you can't have everything.

After seven years of wearing buckskins and guns for his Cheyenne series, you must forgive Clint Walker for plunging in the wardrobe department for his new picture, Send Me No Flowers. He aims to be as well-dressed as co-stars Rock Hudson and Doris Day. But it's back to the moccasins for his following film for Miss Day's husband, Marty Melcher, Machine Gun Chubasco, to be made in Mexico in April.

Don't Confuse Facts with Knowledge

Advised DR. STUART ROSENBERG

Einstein once said that if he were given a single choice as between knowledge and imagination, it would be the latter he would want.

Too many people, however, are under the false impression that education takes place any time and anywhere we expose people to the facts.

The age of science has spawned a host of theories about life which appear to be scientific because they are factual. But while the sum total of facts may supply us with data—useful and sometimes indispensable—they do not necessarily endow us with truth or vital understanding.

One punter put his finger on the nub of the question. He said: "You can lead a man to knowledge but you can't make him think."

Thinking—if it is to be creative and adventuresome—is more an art than a science. And the cultivation of the art of thinking depends more on imagination than on knowledge alone.

Indeed they are correct who insist on knowing the facts, "tabulating the results," "adding up the averages," or "analyzing the statistics."

To get to the unknown we must first know as much as we can about the known. But the "known" is not the same as the "knowable." If we don't soar above the ground we shall forever remain land-locked peasants.

Ironically, in no other field of human endeavor does imagination play so significant a role as in scientific work itself.

The great modern discoveries were not found by scientists who were nothing more than human computers. They were made by men who were capable of clearing new paths—of making a breakthrough.

They were not satisfied with adding up the columns and counting the known facts or figures. Literally they broke away from the facts.

Thomas Edison once consoled his overworked and almost despairing assistants with this incisive bit of wisdom: "Don't be upset because we have conducted 50,000 experiments which have failed. We didn't fail! On the contrary: We now know 50,000 wrong ways. This will help us to get to know the right way."

There are times when the right answer can lead to delusion rather than to delightful discovery. If it is too easily given, too quickly found, a "correct" answer may be merely a slick substitute for thought, a glib slogan rather than a thoughtful conclusion.

Contrarywise, the wrong answer, in the hands of imaginative people, may be instructive and may even serve creative purposes.

Knowing what won't work can help us to understand why it won't work and thus open up new possibilities for open-eyed imagination to work on.

When we are forced to wrestle with a problem we are made to cut our intellectual teeth on the raw material which may yet yield a sharper and more incisive finished product.

People who are convinced that facts are the equivalent of real knowledge often jump to hasty conclusions. Their thought finishes before it begins; they fail to grow in depth. Their little knowledge, because it lacks imagination, is a dangerous thing.

They think that they know, but do not know how to think—deeply, courageously and imaginatively. True, they have acquired some knowledge. But they have missed the real reward which knowledge can bring—wisdom.

Alberni Budget Shows Rise; Taxes to Remain the Same

ALBERNI — A provisional budget totalling $455,885 was introduced at the last Alberni council meeting, and it was predicted that, although the figure is approximately $52,000 higher than the 1963 budget, there will be no raise in the mill rate. "It is pretty safe to say there will be no increase over the 43 mill rate of 1963," Mayor Fred Bishop said. He pointed out, however, that while the council could budget more or less accurately for debt and general expenditures, education costs are still an unknown factor. An amount of $89,500 has been allowed to cover School District 70 requirements. Featured in the estimates is an allowance of $80,000 for street improvements as the council launches its paving project designed to hardtop remaining gravel roads in the city.

A sum of $18,000 is being set aside for continuing the storm drain program. It was mentioned by the mayor that the paving will cut down the expenditure for street maintenance, while several thousand dollars a year may be saved as the covering of drains eliminates the need for ditch-clearing operations.

Among other permanent projects to be undertaken this year is the renewal of mains in the water distribution system. Police uncovered human remains in torn clothing with French labels in a gravel pit off the Alaska Highway 230 miles southeast of here last May 27. A mummified left hand contained a ring with the initials "H. M." and police said a fingerprint matched one on an identity card issued to Meriguet.

Must Remind U.S. Laing Tells Canada

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canada's future depends on a "clear understanding" with the U.S., Northern Affairs Minister Laing said Wednesday.

He told the B.C. Truck Loggers' Association convention Canada now sells 54 per cent of its exports to the U.S.

while buying 62 per cent of her imports. "It is important to remind them again and again of the need to conduct our Canadian economy on the basis where we can give more and more people work."

The bright spot is B.C., which is selling $300,000,000 more in goods to the U.S. than it is importing.

Death Hearing Ends

Marsi Lie Test Ruled Out

WHITEHORSE, Y.T. (CP) — Preliminary hearing on a charge of capital murder against Karoly Marsi, 32, concluded Wednesday with Magistrate W. J. Trainor reserving decision to today.

Marsi is charged in the death of Henri Meriguet, 30, a university student from France who disappeared in August, 1962, while tracing the footsteps of a grandfather who had taken part in the Klondike gold rush of 1898.

TEST RULED OUT

The last witness to appear at the hearing, which started Jan. 7, was Sgt. Milton Dankworth of the Alaska State police. He attempted to introduce evidence obtained in a lie test to which Marsi submitted. Magistrate Trainor ruled the evidence was not admissible.

The magistrate said the test might be used to break down the credibility of the principal witness at a point in his trial where he has not yet given evidence.

Geza Bordas, a violinist and leader of a Whitehorse gypsy orchestra, testified he was planned by the RCMP in the Whitehorse jail to get information from Marsi.

Mr. Bordas said he and Marsi were in jail together for eight days last month.

He said they had adjacent cells and talked in Hungarian. Magistrate Trainor, said he felt a natural reluctance to hear Bordas' evidence but ruled in favor of admitting it.

Police uncovered human remains in torn clothing with French labels in a gravel pit off the Alaska Highway 230 miles southeast of here last May 27.

A mummified left hand contained a ring with the initials "H. M." and police said a fingerprint matched one on an identity card issued to Meriguet.

Starting Today

Varsity Students To Get Discounts

Five Victoria businesses will give University of Victoria discounts on purchases starting today for a three month trial period.

Roger Barnsley, chairman of the Canadian Union of Students, said that a gas station, hairdresser, a florist and two entertainment businesses have agreed to discounts but he did not name them. At the end of three months students and businessmen will meet to discuss student support of the stores and if the discount stores have been supported it is expected that the practice will be continued.

"This is just a trial period," he said.

Members of the University of Victoria Alma Mater Society are members of the CUS which has organized discount plans in other areas.

PORT ALBERNI — District 70 school board decided at this week's meeting to make a formal offer to take into the district schools the Alberni Indian Residential School's Grades 4, 5 and 6.

Between 90 and 100 children from reserves along the B.C. coast will be assimilated into public school classes next September, according to the plan which has been under negotiation for some time with the Indian affairs branch.

Students of Grades 7 to 12 have been attending the public schools here while boarding at the residential school which is operated under the Indian affairs branch and sponsored by the United Church of Canada.

NANAIMO — The Salvation Army Christmas Cheer Board wants to unite with the Nanaimo Central Christmas Cheer Fund, chairman Gib Stevens told the Salvation Army cheer committee Tuesday. He said confusion is caused by the city having two Christmas fund-raising projects.

PORT ALBERNI — A total of 757 dogs went through the SPCA-operated "Twin Cities" pound shelter during 1963, according to a report submitted to council.

Of the number, 299 had been impounded and the remainder were turned over voluntarily to the SPCA.

Owners claimed 117 of the dogs, while 418 were destroyed. The shelter's facilities were used to destroy 647 cats during the year.

A total of 331 complaints were investigated by the SPCA inspector.

NANAIMO — In magistrate's court Terrence Patrick O'Reilly, Wellington, was unsuccessful in conducting his own defence when he pleaded not guilty to an impaired driving charge.

He was found guilty by magistrate Eric Winch and fined $170 with a two-month suspension of his driving licence.

A dangerous driving charge

DUNCAN — Mary Walden has been unanimously re-elected president of the Cowichan Exhibition Board with the entire executive from last year.

The slate consists of: Alan Larkin, first vice-president;

Henry Westwick, second vice-president, and Harold Whitfield, third vice-president.

NANAIMO — The final shipment of 418 deer hides, collected by Kiwanians here, had been sent to the tannery on the mainland last week-end.

Altogether 1,200 hides were collected this season, the biggest total since the idea was put into force some years ago. Deer hides are a large source of revenue for the club's community work.

NANAIMO — Petty cash was stolen from John Barsby Junior Secondary School some time during last weekend.

Teacher Elwood Miles said that entry was gained by breaking a window. Nothing else was missing.

Chief's Job At Stake

ALBERNI — Jan. 20 is election day for the Sheahat Band here, with two men competing for the position of chief, and five persons in the running for three council seats.

Voting will be in Thomas Hall, 10 a.m. until 8 p.m. Monday.

Labor Here In Childhood Canada Told

VANCOUVER (CP) — The trade union movement in Canada has remained in a childhood stage because government and management have refused to accept it as an integral part of society, a British union leader said Wednesday.

Ramsey Boyland, vice-chairman of the Rolls Royce shop stewards' committee, said Canada's economy would be strengthened if government and management accepted labor as an equal partner.

But Canadian labor, he said, is "handcuffed by all sorts of legislation, by the public's cautious attitude toward trade unionism and by the great distances involved."

DUNCAN — Jack Gwilt of Cowichan Bay is in satisfactory condition at the King's Daughters' Hospital with injuries he received early Tuesday in a two-car collision on the Trans-Canada Highway near Koksilah.

He was one of the drivers involved. The other driver was John R. Bailey of Cowichan Station.

Marge Backmeier of Ladysmith, passenger in one of the cars, suffered a broken collar bone, and her condition at the King's Daughters' Hospital is described as good.

NANAIMO — Gerald Michael Wyse, who broke into a shoe shop on Victoria Crescent Saturday by breaking a window, was found guilty and sentenced by Magistrate Lionel Beevor-Potts, Monday.

Tourist experts from up-Island Chambers of Commerce will meet at Parksville, Jan. 21, to discuss the 1964 tourist season. The local chamber will be represented.

The discussion will take place at the Commercial Hotel, directors of the Duncan-Cowichan Chamber of Commerce learned at their luncheon meeting yesterday.

In absence of president Dennis Hurley who is recuperating at the King's Daughters' Hospital from pneumonia, vice-president Cliff Pascoe presided. A large billboard-type sign at the southern approach to Duncan may soon be renovated.

Yesterday it was decided to have the sign committee make concrete recommendations. One of the directors said businessmen in town would be willing to foot the bill, but no price for the renovation job was given.

NANAIMO — The Nanaimo Chamber of Commerce elected new directors this week to replace those retiring after a three-year tenure of office.

New directors are Mike Gord, Vic Jones, Gene Koster, Jack Warwick and Cec Ramsden.

The directors will meet within the next 10 days to elect the 1964 executive, which will be installed at a dinner in the Tally Ho, Feb. 15.

Decision Today on Trial In Moving Fraud Charge

A decision is expected today on whether to commit for trial two men accused of conspiring to defraud the national defence department of several hundred dollars.

Victoria moving company president Leonard Bieller and former soldier G. A. W. Pope, now living in New Westminster, face charges of conspiracy in connection with the moving of Pope's furniture on his release from the army last summer.

LATENESS OF HOUR

A preliminary hearing in Victoria magistrate's court, expected to end yesterday after several long adjournments, finally was adjourned to today because of the lateness of the hour.

It was testified yesterday that the army paid a moving firm $254.35 to move Pope's furniture from Victoria to Winnipeg.

The Crown alleges that the furniture was actually moved only as far as Whalley, in the Vancouver area.

Edward J. C. Wood, managing director of Pimlott's Transfer and Storage Limited, Victoria, testified that the price of moving the furniture to Whalley would have been $222.80.

He said that Pimlott's got the moving job by tender from the defence department and subcontracted it to Blue and White Moving and Storage Company Limited, Bieller's company, which actually did the work and to which Pimlott forwarded the government payment, less a discount.

Mr. Wood testified that Bieller had first telephoned him to tell him of the job in mid-June. He said the sub-contracting of the job was quite normal.

A youth yesterday pleaded guilty in Victoria magistrate's court to ringing false fire alarms.

David Tryman, 18, of 1898 Crescent, was arrested in company with three other youths in a car early yesterday, court was told. One of the other youths faces trial in juvenile court and the other two have been released.

Victoria Const. Lorne Shandley testified that false fire alarms had been rung at McCashill and Pine Streets and at Ellice and Rock Bay.

NANAIMO — Joe Sutton, re-elected president of the Nanaimo Old Age Pensioners organization, told a meeting here he would lead a fight against fluoridation of the Greater Nanaimo water supply.

To Address Students

Racist Here Today

Governor George Wallace of Alabama will visit the University of Victoria today to address a political science forum at noon in the lower lounge of the Student Union Building at Gordon Head.

Larry Devlin, student council president, expressed pleasure that the governor's visit is his only stop in Canada. "It's a coup for the university and the political science forum," Mr. Devlin said.

Governor Wallace in June last year defied a U.S. federal court order to permit

Negro students admission to the all-white University of Alabama with the result that federal marshals and troops were called in.

He dramatized his opposition to integration by standing in the doorway of the university and barring the students entry.

He will arrive this morning in his private plane and will leave immediately for Alabama after addressing the students on the rights of sovereign states.

His visit is an extra stop on a tour of speaking engagements mostly on campuses on the U.S. west coast.

Wallace

Ex-Freedom Rider:

Don't Act, Ask Students Told

Don't demonstrate, but ask probing questions. This is the advice of former Victorian Michael Audain to University of Victoria students who will hear Governor Wallace today.

Mr. Audain, now a probation officer in Vancouver, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Audain, 333 King George Terrace.

He was in Mississippi in 1961 and rode in buses with the Freedom Riders as a protest against racialism. He served one month in jail for his activities.

"The best policy is not to make a protest but to listen to what the governor has to say then ask probing questions about racist policy," Mr. Audain advised.

Courtenay

Work-Aid Issue Not Dead

COURTENAY (CP) — Mayor William Moore said yesterday Prime Minister Pearson has informed him that the matter of work for welfare will be discussed at the next federal-provincial conference.

The Courtenay mayor said that while Mr. Pearson did not commit himself, "It almost sounded like the prime minister approved of the idea."

SOME TIME AGO

Mayor Moore was involved in a controversy some time ago when he attempted to have welfare recipients work on municipal works projects. He cancelled the plan after the federal government said it would withdraw welfare support if recipients were forced to work for the assistance.

Jammed

Planning Hotly Debated At Cedar

NANAIMO — Free development or planned development was the issue at a jammed meeting of Cedar ratepayers this week. The issue was hotly debated.

Originally the meeting was billed as a North Cedar Ratepayers Association meeting, but residents from other parts of the district attended and the agenda of the North Cedar group was suspended in order to deal with the issue of community planning.

Discussion of Nanaimo River flood control and the Cedar bridge were postponed for another meeting.

Miss M. E. Martensen and William J. Tasse, of the regional planning division, B.C. department of municipal affairs, defined the aim of a community planning area and answered questions from the floor.

PRESSURE

Robert Strachan, leader of the Opposition, who was present in his capacity as a Cedar resident, said it was a question of whether residents wanted orderly planning.

"As a community planning area, Cedar would require building permits and building restrictions," he said.

Population pressure was greater in North Cedar than in other parts of the district.

"Whatever course is adopted the area will have to deal with the problems caused by its growth and development sooner or later," he said.

Chairman Alastair McLeod said the growth of the area was posing problems for the trustees of the water board.

Mervyn Wilkinson claimed that planning would mean more restrictions, and was concerned over the possibility that planning would restrict opportunity and employment of those who depended for their livelihood on the land.

FEARS VOICED

Residents, speaking from the floor, voiced fears that planning would mean increased taxes and higher land assessments.

Mr. Tasse informed the meeting that the formation of community planning areas was solely at the discretion of the minister and was not decided by plebiscite.

"Views of residents carry considerable weight," he explained, "and meetings, such as this, are sounding boards and are noted by the minister."

When it was noted by the chairman that no vote would be taken at the meeting to decide for or on the planning, there were cries of "Dictatorship" from the floor.

Island Rural

Opinions Split Over Co-ops

By KLAUS MUENTER

DUNCAN — Ever since a group of 28 weavers formed the Equitable Pioneers' Co-operative Society of Rochdale in 1844, co-operative ideals have snowballed into a worldwide philosophy through which many industrial and agricultural enterprises prospered.

On Vancouver Island five agricultural co-op groups are links in British Columbia's chain of 80 co-operatives which serve a total of 20,000 members.

They are: Island Farms Dairy Co-operative Association, Cowichan Creamery Association, Nanaimo Farmers' Co-operative Association, Comox Creamery Co-operative Association, and the Alberni District Co-operative Association.

In the old countries the co-op movement has become a way of life but in Canada's relatively young economy there are mixed feelings about it.

The manager of the Duncan branch of Buckenfields, Robert Melville, says: "The Rochdale charter was born of necessity but the organization has grown to such an extent that it is now a vast cartel, and any resemblance to the original concept, the present-day organization is only theory."

"I feel the tax advantages granted by the Canadian government to the co-op movement is an unfair form of competition and constitutes a subsidy by the whole of the tax-paying population to the co-op members.

"It has been said by the Canadian Merchants' Association that the co-op movement in Canada today is the greatest threat to free enterprise while a free enterprise organization must pay taxes on profits."

"A co-operative deducts from its profit a patronage dividend and pays tax on the balance, therefore by increasing a patronage dividend no tax would be paid and this is drying up a tremendous source of tax dollars."

Defending the co-op movement, Cowichan Creamery Association manager Hamish Muter maintained: "The co-op movement is a form of private enterprise governed by the people it serves. In regard to the taxation question all co-operatives pay income tax in one form or another."

"Other private enterprises can follow the same taxation structure if they distribute the surplus money in the same manner as co-operatives."

"At the moment the co-ops pay three per cent of their employed capital and the surplus, if it is not divided, is taxable on the same basis as in the case of other enterprises. If the co-op surplus is divided among members, either in cash or share certificates it becomes immediately taxable in their hands."

Another critical opinion came from Jack Praskowski, manager of the B & K plant at Duncan, who said: "I feel shareholders of co-ops should be treated as are shareholders of corporations and should be taxed accordingly."

"I also feel that, as our governments support co-operatives, particularly in the agricultural sector. It is indicative to me that this is a sign of weakness on both sides—the governments and agriculture."

Mr. Praskowski agreed that history has proven that both types of enterprises can exist side-by-side.

District agriculturist Ken Jameson said: "I am in favor of co-operatives. Farmers can do a great deal more through co-operatives as far as production and marketing is concerned."

Newly-elected vice-president of the B.C. Federation of Agriculture, Archie Stevenson, will leave Saturday as a delegate for the annual five-day convention of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture scheduled next week at Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island.

This year's Vancouver Island plowing match championship will be held April 4, but the location has not yet been determined.

The 1964 plowing match for the B.C. championship will take place at Chilliwack the following Wednesday, and the two top winners from the Island match will take part.

Henry Westwick and his wife were returned to the Cowichan plowing match committee, as president and secretary respectively, and George Braithwaite is vice-president.

Tax Case Argued In City Hall

PORT ALBERNI — City council chambers here have been turned into a courtroom for an income tax case being prosecuted here by personnel of the federal department of taxation.

Charged with evasion are Jonny Camporello and James Smith, partners in Port Fish Company.

The current case started Tuesday and was adjourned while counsel argued a point on admissibility of evidence.

Gas Tank Bid

Central Saanich council has deferred action on a bid by Brentwood Properties for permission for an unnamed client to install a propane gas tank.

Fire Chief C. E. Rowles said water pressure may not be adequate to fight a propane gas fire. The tank would be on Keatings Crossroad.

Central Saanich

Action Ordered —But What?

Central Saanich council has approved an action by its solicitor without, apparently, knowing what that action is.

At Tuesday night's meeting, Reeve Gordon Lee said police chief Fred Brownlee would receive a letter from the solicitor regarding Mrs. Hazel Woodward.

BOUGHT ADVICE

Mrs. Woodward's name appeared under a letter advocating the election of R. M. Lamont, which was mailed within 48 hours of election day. Council felt this was illegal and sought government advice which recommended handling by the municipality.

After Reeve Lee's report on the solicitor's action, Coun. Lamont pointed out that the minutes read that the case would be "reviewed by the solicitor before action was taken" and that he would recommend the action to be taken.

'An Honest Man And Good Man'

By HARVEY SHEPHERD

"The days of our years are threescore years and 10; and if they be fourscore years, yet is their strength labor and sorrow; for it is soon cut off, and we fly away."

The remains of Byron Inge (Bosch) Johnson, 73, premier of British Columbia from 1947 to 1952, were cremated after funeral services at First United Church yesterday.

A crowd of some 300 people, among them dignitaries including Lieutenant-Governor Pearkes, former Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross, Premier Bennett and members of his cabinet, Mayor Wilson and prominent Liberals, gathered at the church to pay their last respects.

They heard Rev. R. J. D. Morris tell of the day of death when "kings and queens, princes and presidents, premiers and statesmen," join equals with the humblest people in presenting an account of their stewardship on earth to Almighty God.

What matters then, said Mr. Morris, is not what office a man has filled but with what integrity he has filled that office, not what "substance" he has acquired but what stewardship he did in his life.

FAITH IN GOD

He said that after discussion with Mr. Johnson's widow and with Byron Johnson Jr., he felt that the only thing appropriate for discussion now was what testimony the late Mr. Johnson's life bore to his faith in God.

Mr. Morris said Mr. Johnson's life was characterized by reverence, integrity and service.

He said that it does not matter that many disagreed with Mr. Johnson politically.

STAND UP

"What matters is that those who disagreed, as those who agreed, can stand up and say, 'He was a good man; he was an honest man.'"

He said the "paradox of death" is that the more a man is missed on earth, "the greater is the reality of triumph."

He concluded: "When the flags are at half-mast here, they are flying free and unfurled and at full mast in heaven."

Masses of flowers were placed at the front of the otherwise rather austere church interior, along with the coffin.

Hymns used in the simple service were O God Our Help in Ages Past and the 23rd Psalm.

Mr. Morris read from the 90th Psalm, which begins:

"Lord, thou hast been our dwelling place in all generations. Before the mountains were brought forth, or ever thou hadst formed the earth and the world, even from everlasting thou art God. Thou turnest man to destruction; and sayest, Return, ye children of men."

NEW TESTAMENT

From the New Testament, he read from the 14th chapter of St. John, beginning:

"Let not your heart be troubled: ye believe in me, I believe also in me. In my Father's house are many mansions: if it were not so I would have told you."

The remains were cremated at Royal Oak Cemetery.

Gordon Head Landscaping Decision Due

A plan for landscaping of Gordon Head campus is expected to come out of today's meeting of architects and development board officials.

Floyd Fairclough, chairman of the board, said that a plan must be prepared so that work can be done in proper sequence.

Some lawns may be planted in the summer but others will have to wait until autumn when the residences are complete.

Multi-Nation Ethnos Lives Up to Her Name

By DON GAIN

A well-named ship is the Ethnos which docked at Ogden Point yesterday to pick up more than 2,000,000 board feet of lumber for U.S. East Coast ports.

Ethnologically speaking she's a Japanese-built ship with a Greek crew, registered in Monrovia, Liberia, and under charter to a Canadian company, Seaboard Shipping Co., Vancouver.

Nicholas Faros, the 30-year-old chief officer from Piraeus, Greece, said her full cargo this trip would total 7,767,000 board feet, most of it to be picked up in Vancouver.

This is only the second time the big ship, 508 feet long, has docked at Victoria. Built in Kobe in 1956, she is of Japanese design. Her deadweight tonnage is 16,000 tons. She has 10 automatic winches which speed loading and unloading.

When fully loaded she will sail for Tampa, Fla., later will discharge cargo at West Palm Beach and Port Everglades; Philadelphia and Camden, N.J. Her previous voyage took her to Yokohama from Mobile, Ala., with a cargo of soy beans. She came to B.C. from Japan.

The ship carries a 33-man crew and presently has one passenger, the chief engineer's wife.

Unless, of course, you count the three canaries.

These are in two cages in the captain's saloon. One of the cages bore the name Chiftis.

Faros and Chiftis

someone who does his job very well.

"Very good, it means," he said.

"Does it mean good luck?" I asked.

He looked a little puzzled, shrugged his shoulders.

"I've been two years on this ship," he said. "Nothing bad has happened."

Prophet And Loss

VANCOUVER (CP) — Former prime minister John Diefenbaker regaled 400 service club members Tuesday with stories of Nkrumah and the fortune teller, and Churchill and the teetotaler.

When he met Prime Minister Nkrumah of Ghana at the 1957 prime ministers' conference in London, "Nkrumah asked me if I believed in telepathy and fortune tellers, and said he had success with one. She told him he'd become Ghana's first premier and marry an Egyptian. These came true."

FOURTH PROPHECY

But the success of the prophecies made Nkrumah worried about the fourth prophecy — he would be assassinated.

"That's why I was interested when I read Nkrumah had looked up the leader of the opposition."

NEVER TAKE IT

"I never take it," said Mr. Diefenbaker.

"What?" said Churchill. "Are you a prohibitionist?"

"No, a teetotaler."

"You mean," said Churchill, "that you are a teetotaler and not a prohibitionist?"

"Yes."

"In that case you only hurt yourself."

John D Advice:

Fight Wigs Not Tories

VANCOUVER (CP) — John Diefenbaker, in a partisan speech to 700 party supporters, urged Tuesday night that "we start fighting Wigs rather than fight among ourselves."

He said a Progressive Conservative government can be restored in Ottawa only if the party "can catch a vision, build unity and a common dedication."

Mr. Diefenbaker referred to the Conservative national meeting next month in Ottawa as a place to set the stage. He left out any direct reference to the question of a vote on his leadership, but he said he has "hundreds" of helpful suggestions on the party's future and Conservatives must be united in pursuing them.

"We must be careful we don't let the Liberals determine our course," he told the rally.

TORN APART

If a Conservative government were still in office, he said, "confederation wouldn't be torn apart as it is under this administration."

He accused the Liberal government of following "the old principle of divide and rule" in its dealings with the provinces. The government had found its first budget "no good" and reduced it section by section, he said.

"Usually when a budget is no good you remove the minister. In this case they removed the budget and kept the minister."

It was a time for further tax incentives and removal of Liberal-instituted sales taxes. Liberal pledges of economies in administration were hardly borne out by increasing the salaries of MPs to $18,000 and by "doubling the salary of the president of the CBC."

New Treaty Panama Gets Tougher

PANAMA CITY (UPI)—President Roberto Chiari told a mass demonstration of Panamanian students last night that Panama would not resume diplomatic relations with the United States until he receives assurances that negotiations will be held for a new treaty governing the Canal Zone.

Chiari's statement was released by his press secretary, Fabian Velarde, after 2,000 to 3,000 University of Panama students marched on the presidential palace protesting Panama's announced intentions to resume diplomatic ties with Washington.

The statement said: "The government of Panama will not resume diplomatic relations with the United States while the government of the United States does not give to the Panamanian government assurances that negotiations will begin to agree on a new treaty to replace those existing."

WORKED OUT
An agreement was worked out between the United States and Panama early Wednesday under the auspices of the Inter-American Peacekeeping Commission of the Organization of American States. It stated that

America Takes Beating

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The United States is "taking a shellacking" on the world opinion front over the Panama situation, the U.S. Information Agency has conceded.

The agency said, in a report on a survey of initial press and official reaction to the violent incidents, that the United States is being strongly criticized in many parts of both Latin America and Western Europe.

SUPPORT FOR PANAMA

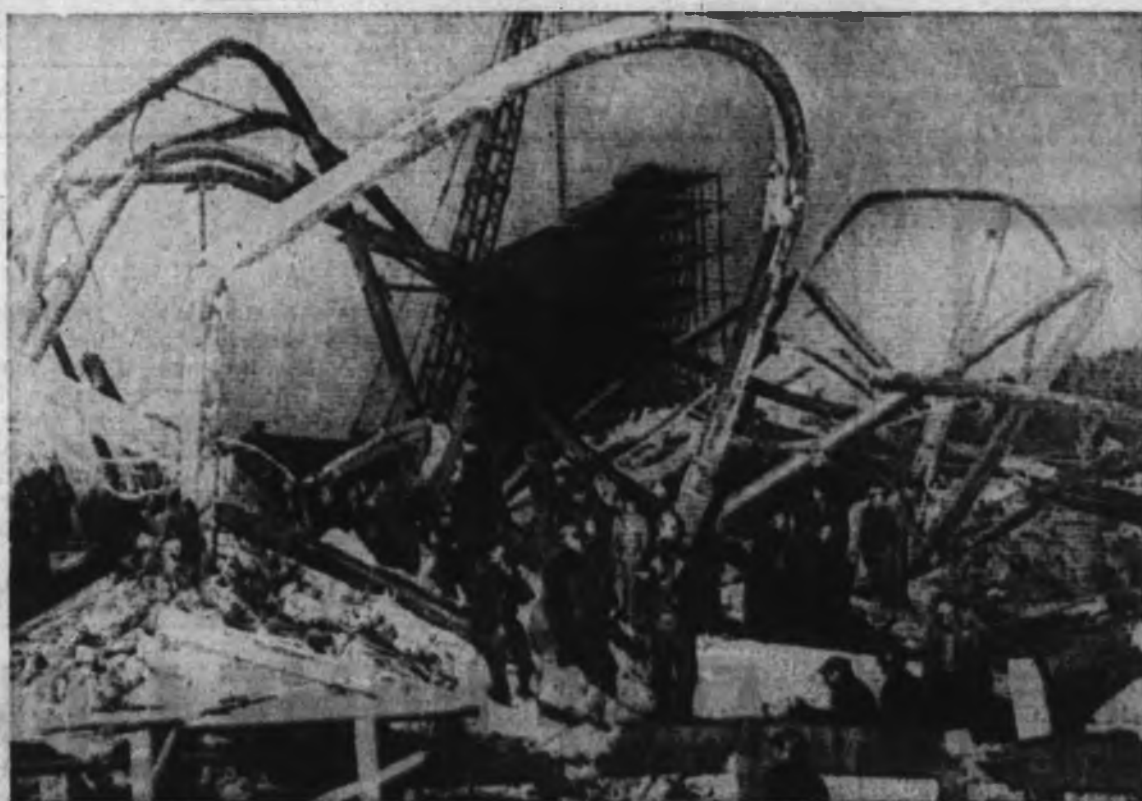

In Latin America, USIA said, there is "a general expression of support for Panama's position." It added: "The United States has been generally criticized, the degree

Treat All, Demand Corsicans

BASTIA, Corsica (Reuters)—Some 5,000 Corsicans demonstrated here Wednesday night for the immediate treatment of all leukemia victims on this island with a French healer's serum.

The marchers were led through the streets by the father of a four-year-old French boy who arrived here for treatment last week.

15 DIE, 10 BURIED AS BUILDING FALLS

Firemen probe wreckage for victims in Paris building collapse.

PARIS (AP)—The 12-storey steel and concrete skeleton of an apartment house collapsed Wednesday killing at least 15 workmen.

Another 18 workmen were injured, and rescuers dug frantically toward the weak cries of men buried under the estimated 100,000 tons of debris. Two of the injured were freed with hacksaws and chisels. About 10 men still were missing.

PILE OF RUINS

Police and army engineers moved into the 20- by 50-yard pile of ruins with mobile cranes as firemen poked through the beams and slabs with listening devices.

Workmen were swinging the last beams of the roof into place when the structure swayed with a roar similar to that of a jet airplane, witnesses said.

LAST BEAM

The crew planned to celebrate the completion of the structural work Wednesday night after the last prefabricated concrete and steel beam was in place.

The building, financed by the government as moderate-rent public housing, was one of several in an 800-apartment urban renewal project.

Seven Alive In Mine

CASTRO, BAUKEL, West Germany (Reuters)—Rescuers digging toward seven miners trapped by a roof fall 200 feet underground in a coal mine here expect to reach them by Friday night, a mine spokesman said Wednesday night.

The men were being supplied with food through a natural fissure.

Shaky Case

Loggers Get Liquor

VANCOUVER (CP)—City police were advised Wednesday that they seized $1,300 of liquor on "extremely shaky" ground. So they took it back.

And a cheer went up at the hotel where the province's truck loggers are holding a convention.

UNLOADING

Detectives seized the hard liquor and beer Tuesday as it was being unloaded at the hotel, bound for 15 hospitality rooms operated by companies taking part in the convention. Deputy Chief Gordon Ambrose said the seizure followed a complaint by a liquor vendor under a section of the Liquor Control Act.

NO AGENTS

This reads that no person shall canvass for, solicit, receive or take orders for purchase or sale of liquor, or act as agent for purchase or sale of liquor.

A spokesman for the police dry squad said:

"The section appears clear. But the city prosecutor's office advised us that there were cases in the past which would indicate our case—with the evidence we have—would be extremely shaky."

WOULDN'T WIN

"We were advised we wouldn't be successful in a prosecution."

Deputy Ambrose hinted that the vendor's allegations might have been borne out "if the liquor had reached a further stage on its distribution."

Pearson, de Gaulle Discuss Cold War

PARIS (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson and President de Gaulle exchanged frank assessments of East-West relations Wednesday and dealt with matters directly affecting their two countries.

In a conference extended at de Gaulle's request beyond the scheduled one hour, the two leaders discussed the cold war thaw from the standpoint of future East-West relations.

It is understood they also explored ways to improve economic and cultural contacts between Canada and France, possibly aiming at consultative machinery similar to the periodic Canada-United States cabinet conference.

In discussion of cultural relations, student exchanges were high on the list.

Johnson, Segni Partners

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson and Italian President Antonio Segni ended two days of talks with a call Wednesday for a United Europe linked with the United States in an Atlantic partnership.

In a joint communique they said political and military talks on establishing an Atlantic alliance nuclear missile fleet are proceeding satisfactorily.

Segni also emphasized the need for an Atlantic partnership and a politically united Europe in an address to a joint session of Congress.

Western Moves Mapped

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Douglas-Home and visiting Chancellor Erhard set out Wednesday to cement British-West German partnership amid reports of new Western moves to halt the world arms race.

Douglas-Home and the West German leader, together for a two-day parley, were taking a long, cool look at prospects of disarmament as part of a broader survey of East-West relations.

While they were together British informants outlined a three-point initiative to be taken by Western powers soon after the 17-nation disarmament conference resumes work in Geneva Jan. 21. The West will be represented by Canada, the United States, Britain and Italy. The proposals:

BAN SPREAD
1. Experts should begin work at once on two major East-West agreements—to ban the spread of nuclear weapons to countries which do not now have them and to build a system of observation posts to guard against surprise attack.
